We dedicate Le Bijou of 1938 to . . .

EDMUND D. SOPER

Christian leader and earnest supporter of Ohio Wesleyan.

As a professor, as a friend to students, as president of this university, he has ever furthered those ideals we most admire.

We shall miss his jovial personality, his unswerving loyalty, his integrated sincerity. It has been a privilege to know so fine a man.

President Soper

FOREWORD

To the students of Ohio Wesleyan University we present LeBijou of 1938—a volume whose keynote is simplicity and whose aim is to suggest some of the ideals of this institution. Through the mediums of camera and of pen, we salute Wesleyan traditions—the great heritage of her students and the cherished remembrance of her alumni.

PRESIDENT SOPER

Prexy is like the proverbial cat—he has nine lives. He is not like the cat, however, which has its lives one after another. Prexy lives his nine lives almost interchangeably, several at one time. What I mean is that there are just about nine distinct relations which the president of a college has with that number of different kinds of people, and each one constitutes a different life and a changed approach on his part.

Now there are the students; he leads a real life with them. He must be young with them in spirit even though increasingly not young in years. It is what keeps him young in spirit in spite of his years.

Another life is lived at the same time; that is, he also lives a life with the faculty, and it is not the same life by any means. They just do not look at things alike, faculty and students; they never have and they never will. And so, on the prexy's part, it is necessary time after time to make a sudden switch and go one way or the other, as the case may be.

Again another life; it is with the trustees. Does anyone imagine a trustee and a faculty member seeing things alike? This life is not so frequently lived by the president, but it is real when it occurs, for do not the trustees control the college and are they not his bosses?

Then there are the alumni, our output, those whom we point to with pride, those who are out in the world making the college what it is in the eyes of everybody. This is their Alma Mater and they are very solicitous about their parent. They differ greatly from the faculty and from the students and even from the trustees. And when one deals with them he finds himself making an approach very different from any other.

That is four; now for number five—the town of Delaware, with its downtown coaches, its college widows, its "Bun" Hoffman, and whatnot, everything which goes into the making of the community in which we live. We could not get along without Delaware; could Delaware get along without us?—let Delaware settle that. But just to raise the question makes me feel different.

Another of these lives is that with the church, not necessarily with a long-tailed coat and with a white necktie, but it is a life quite different. He must remember that Ohio Wesleyan would never have been born had it not been for the Methodist Church, which willed it into existence and has been its firm friend ever since.

The seventh life is that which the prexy lives with the other college prexies in Ohio and out beyond. He is a very different man when he goes to Chicago and New York to educational meetings than he is on the campus, for prexies when they get together have things to say which they do not say to any other group.

Number eight is the life lived with the parents of students, and what a life! Parents that are solicitous and parents that are grateful. Many of them are not alumni; they do not know the attitude of the trustees; their life is one apart and yet very closely connected with Ohio Wesleyan.

And finally, the financial constituency, the prospective givers, those who have in the past put up our buildings and must do so in the future. And here again a different life is lived.

And now take out your magnifying glass and look at each of these little thumbnail brevities and enlarge them in your imagination until you see them big and distinct; then you will know what it means to be a prexy with his nine lives, all devoted to Ohio Wesleyan.

Board of Trustees

| John Edwin Brown..... | President |
| Harvey O. Yoder..... | Vice-President |
| Clarence H. LaRue..... | Second Vice-President |
| Fred L. Rosemond..... | Counsel |
| Burleigh E. Cartmell..... | Secretary |
| Donald J. Hornberger..... | Treasurer |
| Donald B. Watkins..... | Assistant Treasurer |

The actual governing body of Ohio Wesleyan is the Board of Trustees. This Board consists of thirty-eight members, two of which are new this year. Mrs. Lillian Ferguson has replaced Mrs. Laylin, and Mr. Andrew P. Martin has replaced Mr. Guthery. All trustees are elected for a five-year term and may be reelected after the expiration of this term.

The Board of Trustees selects the administration and approves all of the recommendations for new professors and for promotions in rank. Special meetings of the Board may be called at any time by the President, John Edwin Brown. The Board holds two regular meetings each year in Delaware, the mid-year meeting being on the last Monday in November, and the final one being on the Friday preceding Commencement.

Various committees of the board have definite functions and duties which they perform. The members of the committees are changed from year to year.

| Allen C. Conger..... | Registrar |
| Donald J. Hornberger..... | Treasurer |
| Donald B. Watkins..... | Assistant Treasurer |
| John J. Hickson..... | Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds |

It is interesting to know that the efficient mechanism of this university is supervised primarily by four men. Through their diligent and praiseworthy efforts and methods these men have become known as Administration Heads.

Allen C. Conger, official registrar, records the grades of all students and of fraternities and sororities. He also has charge of new student requirements. Mr. Conger's greatest interest as a naturalist is the study of birds. He also enjoys working in his yard.

Donald J. Hornberger, university treasurer, finds time to make investigations for the college as well as to supervise all business reports. He divides his summers between gardening at home and fishing near his cottage in Michigan.

The person in charge of business operations is Donald B. Watkins. It is he who controls the direct business of the dormitories, purchases supplies, and supervises the budget. His hobby is sports, and at the present time he is interested in his own boy's athletic ability.

John J. Hickson, who is in charge of plant and maintenance, directs all repairs and manages the personnel department. His greatest pleasure is found in traveling, although at times it is only in books.

Ohio Wesleyan has been enjoying the excellent work of Miss Mary Helen Fretts, Dean of Women, for the second year. A graduate of Wesleyan and former Assistant Dean at Ohio University, she has won her way into the hearts of the students and has proved her ability for understanding people by helpfully encouraging many of the coeds. One of her outstanding qualities is her remarkable talent for remembering names and small details. She never tires of entertaining at small informal gatherings at her comfortable suite at Monnett.

A keen sense of humor and a kindly, sympathetic nature exemplify Joseph Somerville, Dean of Men. He is a graduate of DePauw University where he was president of the senior class. Although the Interfraternity Council is one of his greater responsibilities, he is equally well known for his "chaperoning" of the pajama parade. The freshman men have a chance to really know him when they seek his advice concerning their many problems and their choice of a life work. His greatest pride is being the father of two charming little daughters.

Wesleyan Deans

A graduate of the University of Toronto, Harold Sheridan has proved his remarkable efficiency during his four years as Dean of the College. Granting the privilege of unlimited cuts to those on the Dean's list, he finds many striving for this worthy goal every year. Upon his announcement that the faculty debated plans for the changing of the grading system, a great deal of interest was aroused. When not acting in his official capacity as Dean, he spends his time at Blind River.

The Alumni Office under the direction of Mr. H. M. Shipps, the executive secretary, keeps on its mailing list the addresses of 17,000 alumni. To 2,500 of them are sent the Alumni Magazine, co-edited by Mr. Shipps and Miss Mary Ramsey, and the News Bulletin, written by Gilson Wright and Mr. Shipps. Notwithstanding the fact that sometimes as many as 600 addresses of alumni are changed in one month, Mrs. Bessie Beal records the engagements, marriages, and deaths of the alumni, and the births of their children, all of which appear in the Ohio Wesleyan Magazine. Playing an important part in the life of the college, the alumni elect nine of the trustees and have a group of ten alumni directors who carry on the work of the Alumni Association and report to the alumni body each year. These directors recognize the five outstanding alumni annually and are responsible for all alumni interests. The president of the alumni fund is an alumni director, as are the chairmen of the magazine board and the presidents of the Associated Monnett and Odevene Clubs.

The New Student Office sends out catalogues and circulars containing information for prospective students, and makes it possible for them to visit the school in order to become better acquainted with the advantages and opportunities offered by Ohio Wesleyan. Special days are set aside for this purpose when visitors are able to make a conducted tour of the campus.

Mr. Cartmell, secretary of the Board of Trustees, devotes his time to the promotion of new funds.

In addition to being a partial unit of the New Student Office, Gilson Wright is the director of the News Bureau; and Miss Mildred Alcott is in new student work as the head of the Century Club.

Dormitory Deans

Assistants to the Dean of Women and heads of women's dormitories are Miss Goldie McCue, Miss Esther Ostlund, and Miss Josephine Montgomery. Miss McCue—petite and gracious—advises young women in Austin. Assisting her is Miss Fiedler. Monnett maintains its traditional atmosphere under Miss Ostlund's supervision. Peppy and animated, she is interested in personnel work. Miss Montgomery, the charming and tactful hostess of Stuyvesant, guides many freshman women through their last stages of "growing pains". Miss Moore is her assistant.

In charge of co-operative halls are Mrs. Welch, Miss Wharton, Miss Hunter, and Mrs. Jones.

Dr. G. T. Blydenburgh—jovial, white-smocked, and efficient—directs the Health Department whose function is the prevention of illness through a program of detailed physical examinations. At the "Preventorium", or hospital, the doctor, Miss Myers, Miss Hawkins, and Mrs. Swickheimer act "in loco parenti".

Slocum Library, one of the ten finest college libraries in America, offers Wesleyan students unusual research opportunities. Eugene H. Professor Amy

"Why study English?" The question is not asked as often as it once was. Previous to the coming of the late Dean Smyser, Ohio Wesleyan had no professor of English; a few courses in rhetoric and literature were taught by professors of Greek, Latin, and history. Today, instead of assuming that one need not study his mother tongue, the university makes such study one of its few specific requirements. Though in its brief history the department has enrolled in its courses over two-thirds of the undergraduates, it hopes that Le Bijou will not hold it responsible for all of the inaccuracies and improprieties of campus speech and writing.

At Ohio Wesleyan, the Department of Economics and Business Administration is part of the liberal arts college in both spirit and standards. It surveys the business world objectively, and it teaches business practice neither as a racket nor as a trade, but as the working of a social institution. Moreover, its purpose is not to make technicians of our students or "insiders" in the tricks of business strategy, but to show how business operates in the modern world. This approach to business is not only an integral part of a liberal arts education; it is, experience has shown, the best preparation for a business career.

"Taste is the mark of an educated man, imagination the sign of a productive man, and emotional balance the token of a mature man." Ohio Wesleyan University in its curriculum aims to develop taste, power of appreciation; imagination, vision; emotional balance, stability. In this broad program the Speech Department with its offerings of Debate and Rhetoric of Public Address, Dramatics, Interpretative Reading, Speech Correction, and Radio Speech is making its contribution to the culture of its students.

"When a German gets his hands on an adjective, he declines it and keeps on declining it until the common sense is all declined out of it" . . . I heard a Californian student in Heidelberg say, in one of his calmest moods, that he would rather decline two drinks than one German adjective. So writes Mark Twain in his essay "The Awful German Language".

Elementary German students at Ohio Wesleyan perhaps sympathize with Mark Twain. Some, however, do get beyond the "awful" stage and find that they can actually read and understand some of the world's great literature.

T. C. Dunham

Spanish

In the Spanish Department we believe that the study of languages is of great educational value to the student. We emphasize in our work three aspects: the aesthetic, the intellectual, and the practical. The student should have a conception of the importance of words, the logic of language structure, and the discipline of precision. The royal road to language learning is through conversation. Students who so desire may pursue courses on the institutions and history of the Hispanic countries.

The main purposes of the Department of Latin and Greek are two-fold: to train teachers who will be able exponents of the Classics, and to give those not expecting to be specialists an adequate conception of the debt which modern civilization owes to classical culture. This is accomplished through courses specially designed for this purpose and through the activities of the Latin Club, for as Cicero says: "Haec studia adolescentiam alunt".

Dwight Nelson Robinson

Latin and Greek

The study of a foreign language means much more than the mastery of certain learning skills. In our French classes at Ohio Wesleyan, in addition to helping the student acquire these values, we aim to improve his ability to understand the history and culture of France by studying her literature and customs and the characteristic traits of the French people.

Education

Pedagogues! You know what they say—"The pedagogues of today make the citizens of tomorrow." Here at Ohio Wesleyan we make pedagogues. Through the years our graduates have gone out in great numbers to serve the schools of the land. Each spring there comes a demand for more of them. It is a fine testimony to the Ohio Wesleyan product.

Harold J. Sheridan

Political Science

In the transitional era in which we are living, the study of government assumes greater importance and new emphasis. Shifting party alignments, heated controversy over fundamental principles, the trend toward socialization, the mounting public debt and increasing tax burden stimulate political inquiry and sustained interest in civic responsibility. Similarly the struggle for supremacy between rival national ideologies makes the study of international relations imperative.

Psychology

This is a book of memories. Ten years hence those memories will carry hardly an idea as it came to you here. But you are building a philosophy of life. Sociology would add to that philosophy this: Not praise or blame, but understanding! For understanding is the foundation of sympathy, the spring of action, the essence of science. We have adventured with you in the quest for understanding.

The aims of this department are to arouse in the individual an interest in motor activity that will have a carry-over value, and an understanding, together with the application, of the fundamental precepts that make for the normal functioning of the various systems of the body, so that the body will function as a whole for the welfare of the individual. We aim to accomplish this by: giving a theoretical knowledge of games; practical participation in games; a test on the two methods above; informal talks upon the fundamental principles of hygiene; a test of the knowledge of the above; and an appeal for the application of these principles.

A department of music in an arts college, the Ohio Wesleyan Music Department believes, should administer to as great a variety of musical interests among the student body as possible. The importance, therefore, of studying the needs of the student with a non-professional interest in music as well as those of the student majoring in music is apparent to us. We hope to be able in the years ahead to improve and increase the opportunities for instruction and participation in music for both groups of students.

Rexford Keller

Happiness may represent our wealth of satisfactions which may be accumulated through the wise use of our time, energy, and money in the business of living. It, then, is a test of the way in which we use the personal and material factors in our socio-economic society to satisfy our needs.

Home Economics uses all of the sciences and arts and makes practical applications of them in living together in the home, therefore offering a challenge to men and women that is worthy of the best in them.

Some students are so benighted that they have never even entered Art Hall. If they had been more enterprising they would have known, and perhaps enjoyed, courses in applied art; or if not endowed with much skill by nature, they could at least have been enlightened in the fields of Home Decoration or Art Appreciation. The friendly atmosphere of Art Hall is something that has to be known from the inside to be appreciated.

Social Ethics

"Social institutions can no longer be taken as constant, as a secure system of procedures by the aid of which the individual adjusts himself to the changes in himself, in his fellow men, and in outer nature.

"Certainly the hardest task that faces civilized man is to discover how . . . he can maintain, advance, and redirect to the service of common ends the elaborate complex of material means and social institutions to which, almost unwittingly, he has fallen heir."—(R. M. MacIver, "Society")

What is religion? How did our religion develop? Why do we hold the views that we do? To what extent are these views valid today? These are questions comparatively few students have considered carefully before coming to college.

The Department of Bible seeks to face these problems with the students in the hope that they may better understand the significance of religion for life and may better appreciate the great heritage that we possess in the Bible.

Mathematics requires precision and discipline. Studied for its own sake, it can become an enjoyable part of one's general culture. It is indispensable as a tool in much scientific work, and, in its elementary aspects, it is too important to be neglected because something else is less difficult and, momentarily, more entertaining. Both its method and its results are profoundly significant in civilization as we know it. In the spirit of these remarks, the Mathematics Department of Ohio Wesleyan attempts to leave its impress.

Dr. Westgate insists that philosophy is the search in a dark room for a black cat—which isn't there. For others, however, it is the quest for some ultimate interpretation of life, or the attempt to integrate the various fields of knowledge and see life whole. For the local instructor it is primarily the search for the good life whether in the realms of politics, art, or religion, and his basic assumption is that Socrates spoke truly when he declared that "the unexamined life is not worth living."

History

A book review by Eells and an article by Van Sickle for a European learned journal; freshman "boners" and the ever present tendency of students to manufacture history out of whole cloth and, without batting an eye, to give us as honest history something that never happened on land or sea or in the air; some high-grade research papers by advanced students; Niebuhr's baffling, profound, spiritual interpretations; and a series of tragic and alarming developments in Europe and Asia that leave us fumbling for meanings—these are some of the current developments in the ever-changing panorama of history.

H. C. Hubbard

History of Religion

When, some time ago, we swept aside the conventionalism of the past and its moral sanctions, and published the banns of our new-found liberty, we thought we were heading for emancipation and more spacious realms of living. It belongs to the confusion of the times that we now see we merely exchanged one set of controls for another; and like the devil-infested house of the parable, our latter stage threatens to be worse than our first. In the new authoritarianism whose tentacles are circling the globe, the individual has less prospect of being individualistic than before, and the measure of liberty he had within law he is in danger of losing to abusive power outside of law.

The same old greetings from the same old group in the same old M-13 to all readers of Le Bijou!

We are still offending the geologists of the first floor with good zoological odors and an occasional overflow from our sinks; we are also still sending good men and women into zoology and medicine. This year one-half of our pre-medics voted in the upper quarter of the ten-thousand taking the national aptitude test.

Edward L. Rice

Student to professor of geology: "I like best the kind of geology one gets in popular lectures," implying that was not the kind she was getting. Professor: "I suppose I could doll up in a dress suit and pull that kind of stuff, only, the geology wouldn't register. That isn't the way to get geology or anything else. Besides, I have to consider my own self-respect."

Chemistry

A bit of philosophy expressed by a chemist in 1669 with which most chemists would agree today:

"The chymists are a strange class of mortals impelled by an almost insane impulse to seek their pleasure among smoke and vapour, soot and flame, poisons and poverty; yet among all these evils I seem to live so sweetly, that may I die if I would change places with the Persian King."

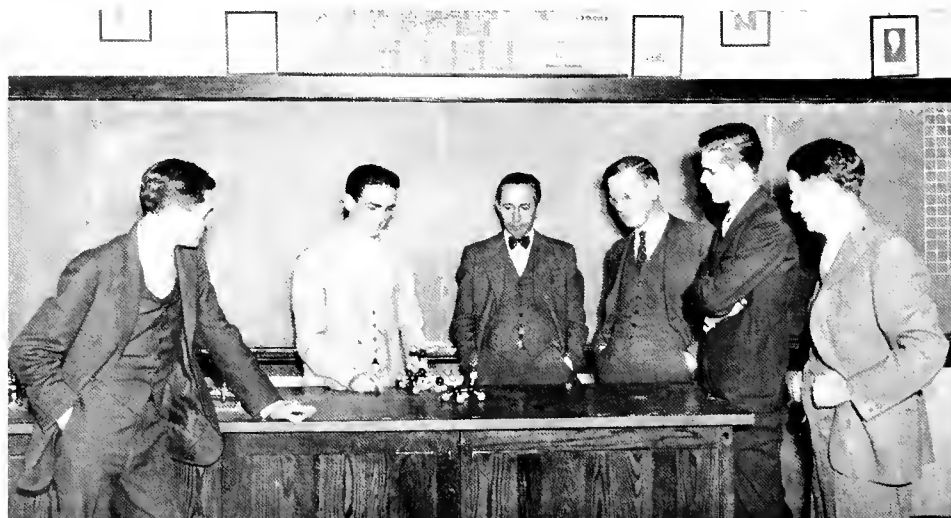

W. A. Manuel

Astronomy

Astronomy, the most magnificent and the most detached of all sciences, is our profession. Even though the latitude, longitude, and time, as determined by astronomical methods, are useful and necessary in everyday life, the incentive for research in astronomy is the inborn inquisitiveness of the human mind. Many problems activated countless generations of astronomers from the wise men of Chaldea forty centuries ago to their modern successors using the best instruments that industry and technology can provide. There is yet no answer to these problems and the quest may be endless, but we enjoy the opportunity to peer into space and time farther than before and to understand our place in the universe a little better than has been the lot of the previous generations.

The Department of Physics appreciates the opportunity to greet the readers of Le Bijou.

The departmental enrollment for this semester is 135. Don't forget the probable error!

Students of varied interests and objectives are pursuing (and perusing) courses in general physics, electricity, thermodynamics, optics and photography, sound, and laboratory arts.

To function effectively for the student of general interest, to lay a safe foundation for entrance to industry and the graduate school, and to cooperate with the departments of education and the other sciences in the training of science teachers are three well defined departmental objectives.

P.S. It is rumored Physics classes are being dismissed more promptly.

STUDENT ADMINISTRATION

Charles Copenhaver

The indication of progress is change, and this year's Student Administration set as its goal numerous progressive changes. These goals were obtained with a certain degree of gratifying success. The effect of this re-vitalized program was a general stimulation of the indefinable spirit of Ohio Wesleyan University.

An alert and capable Student Council ably handled the routine problems of student government and made valuable constructive contributions to such pertinent issues as academic honesty, student commons, and cleaner class elections. Specialized needs of the student body were met by efficient committees functioning under energetic committee heads.

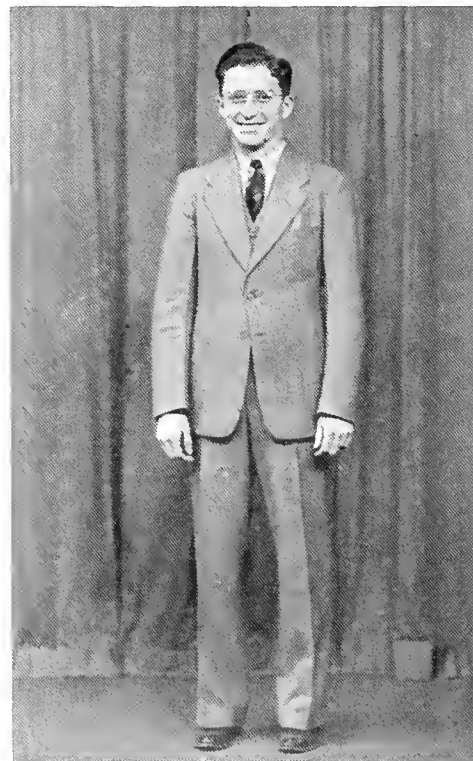

Much has been attempted; some has been achieved. No one individual is responsible for what success there has been. What has been accomplished has been made possible by the sympathetic understanding of the University Administration, the outstanding work of the student committees and Student Council, and the cooperation of the entire student body. To them I am humbly grateful.

Charles L. Copenhaver
President of the Student Body

It seems quite paradoxical that the Student Affairs Office should have this space allotted after the appropriation for this book from the Student Budget was discontinued entirely this year.

The Student Affairs Office is composed of juniors who supervise the work of the sophomore tryouts. The work this year was mainly directed in three channels: continuance of a long-time survey to point out from which districts and areas Wesleyan students come; besides the maintenance of the usual record of activities, a study of the location and the membership of fraternities; and a detailed survey of the number of scholarships and their allocation together with the point averages of the recipients.

The Student Council, composed of leaders of campus activities and headed by the president of the student body, meets every two weeks at the various fraternity houses. Those who thus aid in directing campus affairs are the secretary of the student body, the editors of both Le Bijou and the Transcript, the Athletic Representative, the University Social Chairman, representatives of non-fraternity men and women, and the presidents of classes, women's dormitories, W.S.G.A., Interfraternity Council, Panhellenic Council, W.A.A., Mortar Board, O.D.K., Y.W.C.A., and Y.M.C.A.

The Student Committee heads are guided by President Charles Copenhaver. Don Purviance leads the committee arranging the daily chapel programs. The Welfare Committee, directed by Jane Cary, locates jobs for needy students. The planning of courses and curriculum is so big a job that Mary Belle Whitacre and Stan Minor divide the burdens of the Calendar and Curriculum Committee. Student Body Secretary-Treasurer Paul Riffle heads the Committee on Elections. The success of Dad's Day, Mother's Day, and other special days is largely due to Ruth Logeman's committee. Dick Maurer and his Forum Committee bring lectures and concerts to the campus.

W. S. G. A. Executive Board

Executive President, Marjorie Potter, Executive Secretary, Norma Woodard, Treasurer, Margaret Radabaugh, and Judicial President, Helen Simons compose the Executive Board of Women's Student Government Association. This board plans the social and the cultural program of the year for women only. These activities are all financed by a fifty-cent fee paid per semester by each woman student.

The program sponsored this year had to do with the development of the social arts and graces. There were speakers on "The Art of Conversation", "Proper Dress for the Occasion", "Entertaining People", and "Home Decoration". The social usage test given to all women students for the first time this fall played a large part in the year's program. The results were tabulated and filed away to be compared with those of succeeding years.

The Tuesday night pledge meetings of the freshman women were replaced once a month by house meetings, which featured talks on "How to Study", "Mental Health", and "Care of the Body".

At the end of the year the Board undertook the task of revising various sections of the constitution which had been badly written.

Highlights of the year were the Mistletoe Tea Dance and Monnett Week-end, which featured the incoming Executive President as May Queen.

The judiciary body of the highly organized Women's Student Government Association is, as its name implies, the court wherein infractions of the rules are tried. The Board also makes necessary new rulings and revises old ones. The plain, unassuming room in Austin basement in which trials are held every Wednesday night can take on a terrifying aspect when one has suddenly acquired an excess of demerits. There a girl summoned before the group sits in the middle of a circle of "Judy Board" members who fire staccato questions at her. The judgments rendered are considered sincere and unbiased and are highly respected by Wesleyan women.

In addition to the difficult business of passing judgments on variegated cases, the Board assumes other duties. It is responsible for maintaining order in the complicated "Sign In" and "Sign Out" ledgers, and the members have to check also the special permission slips. In the fall a test on the W.S.G.A. rules, presented to all freshmen and transfers, is ably conducted by the Judicial Board.

Helen Simons held the position of Judicial President this year, and her staff included the other officers of W.S.G.A., committee chairmen, class representatives, and "dorm prexies". Miss Ostlund and Miss Fretts served as advisers.

W. S. G. A. Judicial Board

Hartley, Friedley

The presidents of the three coed halls live a busy but varied life negotiating between students and staff-members for bigger and better dormitory projects. Besides conducting house meetings and presiding over House Council, they automatically become members of Student Council and of the Judicial Board of W.S.G.A. House Council is composed of members chosen from all corridors and meets twice a month. Candlelight dinners, full-blast radios, seating arrangements in the dining-room, and fire drills are among the most common subjects which are brought up for discussion. Then too, the presidents are often invited to sit at head table in the dining-room and continually oversee plans for holiday programs, hall dances, and faculty teas. Among their less pleasant duties are checking the "Sign In" and "Sign Out" books in the dormitory offices and enforcing much-needed quiet hours.

Genial, witty Mary K. Friedley officiates capably at Austin. Her invariably present wide-brimmed brown hat makes her a natural target for much kidding. In W.S.G.A. meetings she is constantly advocating improvements for the smoker.

At Monnett, our hall of tradition, presides sweet-mannered Wilma Patterson with her catchy smile. She is a steady, energetic worker and fulfills her responsibilities conscientiously. Y.W.C.A. claims much of her extra time and planning ability.

At the head of Stuyvesant is Helen Hartley, one of the more poised freshman women. Other than being efficient in her capacity as dorm president, she works on the Transcript, maintains high grades, and makes friends easily. The president of the freshman dormitory automatically becomes the secretary-treasurer of the freshman class according to the rule passed last year by the student body.

Office hours from four till dinner—study schedules to approve and enforce—a noisy radio to be quieted down the hall—a homesick cherub weeping over her troubles—the strange technique of sorority rushing to make clear—the parents of Susie Freshman to meet—an invitation to a midnight corridor spread—a group meeting in Miss Montgomery's office at seven—it's all in the life of a senior adviser!

Ten senior women, selected by a student and dean's committee each year for their leadership, scholarship, and personal ability to work with others, act as "big sisters" and competent advisers to the incoming girls at Stuyvesant Hall. This advisory system has been an important feature on the campus for seven years, and its honor is steadily increasing as the group assumes further activities. These ten women, who interpret college life for freshman girls, deserve a great deal of credit and esteem.

This year each senior adviser was responsible for an individual activity in Stuyvesant Hall. Ruth Logeman released all dormitory publicity. Betty Scroggs, as social chairman, planned many variety programs. Libby Smith was in charge of the twilight vesper and musical programs. Peggy Schlabach and Marjorie Molden co-starred as dramatic cooches for dormitory productions. Jane Siller, as dancing "pro", learned the "Big Apple" with her talented pupils. Marty Johnson and Mary Alice Creager were hostesses for dormitory parties and Sunday demi-tasses in the lounge. Mary Belle Whitacre organized the town freshmen, notifying them of all rush activities and dormitory parties. The girls in the co-operative halls were advised by Henrietta Wonder. The group continued their activities during the second semester with weekly luncheon meetings at Stuyvesant Hall.

University Social Committee

Master of "swing and sway" on the Wesleyan campus, the Social Committee works hard, worries much, and frets not a little over bands, varsities, and exchange dinners.

The committee is appointed by the president of the student body and holds its meetings every other Monday in joint session with the faculty social group. Pooling ideas for gaiety and merriment, members plan the bringing of outside orchestras to the campus for university "rhythm sessions" and arrange such dances as the "Sulphur Swing" in connection with O.D.K. Acting as introducer between fraternity life and Stuyvesant charm, the Social Committee also plans the annual exchange dinners, a popular tradition in Wesleyan circles.

A new comet in committee activities this year was the pamphlet prepared by Dean Fretts and Dexter Alderman, chairman of the group, which was given to the members of the faculty. The writing concerned the art of Wesleyan dance chaperonage.

This year's program netted eight varsities. Some of those bringing color to student social life were "The Icebreaker" as a welcome back to Wesleyan; "The Homecoming Varsity" with roses to the Homecoming Queen, Miriam Budden; and perhaps the most novel of all, "The 99c Swinger", held after "midyears".

The Century Club functions as Ohio Wesleyan's unique student-host organization. Miss "Midge" Alcott, enthusiastic alumna and efficient field representative, steers the club's course, with Professor Dunham as faculty adviser. Miss Alcott directs the compiling of a list of several thousand prospective Wesleyanites, and among this number some five hundred come to Delaware each year. In most cases these people are personally interviewed by an O.W.U. undergraduate. Working on the theory that a satisfied customer makes the best salesman, the club has had a high degree of success.

Two co-chairmen selected in the early fall of their junior year—Margaret Radabaugh and "Chuck" Pulley held the positions this year—guide the efforts of the district chairmen who are sophomores. Ohio comprises fourteen of the districts, and the rest are groupings of other states. During noon meetings at Bun's, plans are made by the group for contacting new students in vacation periods. At these meetings information concerning available literature and moving pictures of campus life is obtained, and interesting notes on such things as the college's famous graduates and Wesleyan's outstanding library are given by Miss Alcott. In their respective districts the chairmen distribute catalogues and copies of LeBijou to high schools and scout around for good college material.

A visiting day was held in the fall. At this time all high school students interested were feted to a tour of the campus and a Wesleyan football game. The Century Club members, wearing white badges marked "Host", acted as guides for the visitors. A similar event, termed "A-Day-at-College", was scheduled for the spring. The year was climaxed by the annual High School Relays in which over a thousand boys participated.

Stan Minor

Senior

This year's senior class early showed the ability and spirit for which they have become famous during their years at Wesleyan. They began by being twice victorious in the freshman-sophomore fights. Their members swelled the ranks of Freshman Players and Phi Society, and many went in for debate and journalistic endeavors. With their first year came Saturday classes, chapel before lunch, stricter rushing rules, permanently nominated beauty queens, and promise of athletic prowess.

Dottie Stokes

Officers

Somehow they successfully side-stepped the usual sophomore slump and proceeded in the ensuing years to reform campus politics and to enter into activities with enthusiasm and leadership that have won them awards and respect in all fields.

Now, with President Stan Minor and Secretary Dottie Stokes leading them, their colorful college career is drawing to a close. When they go out as alumni to play their roles on a new stage, Wesleyan will continue to point with pride to the spirit of '38.

Junior Class . .

To the junior class, the school year of 1937-38 promised to mean a great deal in realizing the hopes of many for membership in Mortar Board and O.D.K. honoraries. Others effectively burned the midnight oil to gain recognition as the "Junior Phi Betes" of the class of '39. This decisive year brought the formulation of plans for many future vocations, as college majors were selected and accompanying schedules arranged.

Under the efficient supervision of the junior editorial and business staffs, Le Bijou, Ohio Wesleyan yearbook, was published. Juniors, as chairmen of the Century Club, successfully engineered an energetic drive for new students.

Other activities were enthusiastically entered. Transcript issue-editors were junior journalists, while many of the leading roles and major parts in university dramatic productions were held by third-year Thespians. Culminating three years of work, coveted membership in many honorary fraternities was realized by juniors.

The junior class was well represented on the student administration committees. Under the sponsorship of the social committee and the co-social chairmen of the class, a series of informal teas for junior women was inaugurated, while the junior chapel committee presented two entertaining programs to the student body.

With exceptional ability and enthusiasm, junior men assumed active membership on the varsity squads of all major and minor sports. Junior athletes also participated in sorority and fraternity intramural competition.

John Smith was elected president of the class for 1937-38, and Ruth Mary Watkins served as secretary-treasurer.

The sophomores, having graduated from frosh caps and ribbons in their hair, settled down in the fall of '37 with feelings of stability and "at-homeness" that only upper-classmen can enjoy. They compensated for the greenness of their freshman days by adjusting themselves with a marked proficiency to the "whips and scorns" of Calculus and Chemistry.

Enthusiastic interest in all campus activities seemed to be typical of these sophomores, as was readily seen by the number of men receiving positions on the football, basketball, and swimming teams, and by the number of girls who made themselves outstanding as participants in Sophomore Commission, debating, and Swimmers' Club. Also, Transcript and glee clubs received due attention.

The traditional freshman-sophomore fight was a bit disappointing after the successful results of the struggle a year ago. The sophomores, however, proved their ability in other ways as talented actors and actresses striving for Wesleyan Players and Theta Alpha Phi and as division chairmen of Century Club. No doubt many places of leadership will be awaiting them when they return to their Alma Mater next fall.

Pin-planting was as prevalent as usual with many a devoted young swain making known his affections by the waters of the Sulphur Spring. Still others felt they were using their chapel cuts more profitably by enjoying a half-hour's relaxation at "Nicotine Gate".

The two students, chosen by the class to represent them as their officers, were Pete Rardin and "Deedee" Gobeille, who did an excellent job of keeping the class united and enthusiastic about group projects.

This year, Freshman Days yielded the largest group of enthusiastic Wesleyanites since 1930. With the aid of the alumni magazine, freshman handbooks, and guiding upper-classmen, all 459 soon made rapid strides in solving scholastic problems and the activity whirl, not to mention their unanimous interest in Bunology and in the desirability of ultimate pin-planting.

The season opened with a University Varsity, the Freshman Mixer, and the annual exchange dinners which serve as a social meeting ground for freshman women and fraternity men. With registration, rushing, and faculty conferences well out of the way, eager novices exerted their energies toward Freshman Players, debate, glee clubs, and the C.A.'s, Y.W. and Y.M.—soon to be followed by the first taste of Wesleyan mid-semester "blue-books".

Changes occurred this year in sorority-fraternity circles in regard to "rushing on campus". Many of the fraternities decided to ban too strenuous "Hell Weeks"; while Panhellenic raised the sorority quota from sixteen to eighteen girls because of the increase in new prospects.

Tradition, too, added its color to first year life with the freshman-sophomore fight, perhaps the last and most outstanding of its kind, ending with the march of the victorious '41s through the halls of Stuyvesant.

A break with tradition came, however, when contrary to former custom, freshman class elections were not held in the spring. Robert L. Robinson, president of the Freshman Interfraternity Pledge Class Council, automatically served as president, and Helen Hartley, president of Stuyvesant Hall, acted as secretary-treasurer.

The spirit of the "Mask and Wig" at Ohio Wesleyan is encouraged by the honorary dramatics fraternity, Theta Alpha Phi. The chapter here was the second to be established, Charles Newcomb, ex-head of Wesleyan's Speech Department, having founded the first at the 1919 Speech Convention in Chicago. Close contact is kept with other chapters by quarterly letters to "The Cue", the national magazine.

The purpose of the organization is to increase campus interest in drama and to establish a closer relationship among students who have taken active part in dramatics. Elections are held twice each year on the basis of a point system. Any junior or senior who has a total of a hundred points, either from actual performances or from technical work, is eligible for membership. In the promotion of dramatic activities on this campus, Theta Alpha Phi cooperates with Wesleyan Players and the Speech Department. Holding monthly luncheon meetings at Bun's, the Thespians discuss current productions, particularly local efforts.

Annually, members of Theta Alpha Phi present a play selected to best suit the talent of the group. In March, Maxwell Anderson's Pulitzer Prize winner, "High Tor", was given starring Georgene Kuhn, Marge Molden, and Bob Crosby, with Miss Moore as director. In addition to their own activities, Theta Alpha Phi members form a nucleus for the casts and technical staffs of all university performances.

For 1937-38, Dorothy Sawyer was president, with Charles Capenhaver, vice-president, Marjorie Molden, secretary, and Myron Shimer, treasurer. Miss Moore and Mr. Hunter served as faculty advisers.

Wesleyan Players

Because so many people thought that the Histrionic Club pertained to history, this dramatic organization in 1928 changed its name to Wesleyan Players. Each year this group presents a number of studio plays in room U7 of Gray Chapel and three major productions at the Willis High School Auditorium. The first major production this year, "First Lady", a comedy by Catherine Dayton and George S. Kaufmann, was the same play which had delighted New Yorkers and shocked Washington by its expose of governmental and social politics in the Capital. "Bury the Dead", by Irwin Shaw, with its setting on the battlefield of the War Which Starts Tomorrow Night and its row of corpses which refused to be buried, carried a potent appeal for peace that so moved the audience that it was discussed in classes throughout the following week. "As You Like It" was the Shakespearean play which was given this year on the night of the annual Shakespearean Reading Contest for high school students.

The club, including Associate and Reserve Players, had over one hundred twenty-five members this year. It was led by Sam Smith, president; Georgene Kuhn, vice-president; June Endean, secretary; and Bill Newton, treasurer. Miss Hortense Moore and Professor R. C. Hunter were co-sponsors.

To those newcomers on the campus who are interested in dramatics, Freshman Players offers a splendid opportunity to sell their wares. Try-outs are held early in November each year, and all the freshmen are invited to participate. The selection of the personnel of the organization lies in the hands of the judges who are the officers of Theta Alpha Phi, the officers of Wesleyan Players, and the instructors of dramatics.

The lot falling to those chosen, until their necessary one-point academic requirement is met, consists in ushering for the productions given by Wesleyan Players. During the second semester, participation in studio plays directed by upperclassmen and work "back stage" on technical crews keep the active members well occupied.

The presentation of a complete three-act play toward the end of the semester climaxes the activities of the year; and its cast and production staff are composed entirely of Freshman Players' members. The hours that these freshmen spend in combining labor and leisure count as credit points toward later membership in Wesleyan Players.

This year the membership of the club was exactly fifty. Their officers were Bill Merrill, president; Barbara Clinton, vice-president; Linda Paxson, secretary; and Bill West, treasurer.

Delta Sigma Rho

Ohio Wesleyan has had on its campus since 1907 a chapter of the oldest forensic fraternity in the United States. Next to Phi Beta Kappa in size among honorary societies, Delta Sigma Rho, founded at University of Chicago, elects both men and women to its membership. The qualifications for membership include two consecutive years of active interest in debate or oratory with participation in three intercollegiate debates or corresponding attainment in the field of oratory. A candidate must be a junior with a minimum point average of 1.5. The prospective fraternity members, recommended by the faculty in the speech department, are voted on by the active Delta Sigma Rho's.

Delta Sigma Rho has as its aim the maintenance of high standards in intercollegiate debate and oratory competition. The fraternity tries to promote a greater interest in these fields and works toward improved public speaking. This year the organization entertained two visiting debaters from the British Isles at a reception following an informal and well-executed debate. The question debated upon by James A. Brown of Oxford, Ronald V. Gibson of Cambridge, Charles Copenhaver and John Kirk of Ohio Wesleyan, was "Resolved: that isolationism is impracticable in the modern world".

Each spring, election of new members is closely followed by an impressive initiation ceremony. A banquet, attended by many enthusiastic alumni, is held in honor of the new initiates. This year there was an especially large and outstanding group in Delta Sigma Rho. Churchill Austin occupied the post of president and Elizabeth Jordan was elected secretary-treasurer. Professor Diem continued to serve ably in the capacity of faculty adviser.

This year Ohio Wesleyan's varsity debaters, directed by Professor Diem, attacked problems of national significance and delivered their arguments to audiences throughout Ohio and eastern United States. The foremost subjects debated were, "Resolved: that the United States should cease to protect by force of arms the persons and property of its nationals in case of foreign war" and "Resolved: that the National Labor Relations Board should be empowered to enforce arbitration in all industrial disputes."

These questions were widely discussed, with a men's team of three starting on their eastern tour March 14. The itinerary included Allegheny College, Syracuse University, Colgate University, New York University, Amherst College, and Princeton University. The international debate held here in November was of interest to the student body as the first debate ever to be part of the University Concert Series. The question, "Resolved: that isolationism is impracticable in the modern world", was debated in split-team fashion with James Brown, Oxford University, and Charles Copenhaver, Ohio Wesleyan, upholding the affirmative, and Ronald Gibson, Cambridge University, and John Kirk, Ohio Wesleyan, on the opposing team. During the year Ohio Wesleyan was also host to the following college teams: Carnegie Institute of Technology, Houghton College, University of Vermont, and Allegheny College, in addition to numerous teams representing other Ohio colleges.

The women's team, directed by Miss Lloyd, upheld its position on the main questions against teams of the following eastern schools: University of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania State College, American University, and Randolph-Macon Women's College.

Freshman Debate

"Resolved: that the National Labor Relations Board should be empowered to enforce arbitration in all industrial disputes." This was the question argued by the Freshman Debate Squad this year both pro and con. The squad was composed of several women's teams and several men's teams. Mrs. Deckord Ritter, wife of Professor Ritter of the English Department, acted as coach. Mrs. Ritter was an outstanding member of the varsity debate squad when she attended Tulane University, and she filled her position here most ably during the past year. The women were scheduled for two debates with Denison and for two with Wittenberg. The men met Denison for two debates and Kenyon for the same number. In addition, the squad participated in a debate with Allegheny College on the Wesleyan campus and in a debate with the University of Cincinnati at Cincinnati.

Those members who have participated in Freshman Debate for one year are eligible for Varsity Debate their second year. A majority of the members also enroll in a course in Argumentation, although this is not a requirement for eligibility. For the first time in their history, Freshman Debaters planned to organize this year.

Representing Ohio Wesleyan in oratory contests throughout the state this year were students from the Speech Department chosen for outstanding talent and ability. The first contest, the Old Line Contest sponsored by the Ohio State Intercollegiate Oratorical Association, was held at Akron University in February. Tracey Jones, representing Ohio Wesleyan, used as the subject for his oration, "After Patriotism—What?" That contest had participants from Ohio University, Wittenburg College, Muskingum College, Akron University, Capital University, Heidelberg College, Baldwin-Wallace College, Kent State University, Wooster College, and Ohio Wesleyan University. Two other contests in which Wesleyan men competed were the Peace Contest at Capital University and the Civic Contest at Western Reserve University late in the spring. The annual Women's Oratory Contest, held at Kent State University, included competition in readings and oratory.

Oratory

Professor Roy Diem of the Speech Department staff coached the student orators who brought honor to Ohio Wesleyan through their notable achievements. The members of the student body showed an enthusiastic interest in the results of the contests.

The slogan behind song-leading here at Ohio Wesleyan this past year was, "There is a place for swing on every campus." The constant favorites of the student body at football games and at pep rallies were: the "Alma Mater", "Cuppet Song", "Stand Up and Cheer", and finally the "Battling Bishops", composed last year by Mr. Stevens, Wesleyan band-master.

Phi Mu Alpha, the national honorary music fraternity, presented a varied program this year. Besides supporting the Concert series, the group sponsored a concert by a trio from the University of Cincinnati, the proceeds going to create a scholarship fund for music students. In the spring, a fraternity sing was held. Also, the members of Phi Mu Alpha acted as ushers for all Little Symphony concerts.

Officers were: Robert Erwin, president; Myron Shimer, vice-president; Donald With, secretary; and Robert Carter, treasurer.

Officers were June Endean, president; Ruth Driggs, secretary; and Eleonor Van Hoesen, manager.

Mu Phi Epsilon, women's music honorary reinstated at Wesleyan, planned a program including the promotion of scholarship in women's music circles, the spring sorority sing, and a chapel program each semester in addition to meetings at Bun's.

The Men's Glee Club, under the direction of Professor Rexford Keller, took part in several musical programs this season in conjunction with the Singers' Club and the Women's Glee Club. Among these were the Easter Concert, the operetta, "Pirates of Penzance", and the Commencement Concert in June.

Ohio Wesleyan students and alumni showed their great appreciation of the Commencement Concert by large attendance and unanimous praise. The three choral groups with orchestral accompaniment gave a superior program. Among the selections was Anton Bruckner's "Te Deum" from his "Unfinished Symphony". It was the first time this celebrated work had ever been played in an Ohio college.

For three years the club had been working on a piece from the coronation scene of Moussorgsky's opera, "Boris Godounov". With great success this composition was first presented as a part of the annual March concert in Gray Chapel. From this concert numbers were taken for the club's chapel appearance, a program which greatly increased the popularity of the organization. In addition several student recitals were given by members of the group during the year. Held at Sanborn Hall, they were attended by appreciative audiences.

All out-of-town engagements were scheduled in the vicinity of Delaware for the purpose of conserving funds. Plans were started for an extensive tour during Christmas vacation next year.

Jack Anderson was club manager.

Singers' Club

Under the skillful baton of Professor Rexford C. Keller, the Singers' Club contributed an admirable season to an already splendid record. The eastern tour through Pittsburgh, Washington, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and a national broadcast over the N.B.C. network at New York gave the club a national reputation. While at home great respect was won by the well-received a capella concert of carols given at Christmas. In like manner, the Singers' Club chapel program proved to be very popular.

Great cooperation was achieved this year among the choral groups on the campus. Verification of this fact was the number of joint concerts given by the Men's and Women's Glee Clubs: namely, the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, "Pirates of Penzance", the Easter Concert, and the Commencement Concert.

As a renewal of a former custom of presenting an operetta annually, the Music Department this year chose the "Pirates of Penzance" as its production. A romantic story of Frederick, an apprentice as a pirate, and Mable, a general's daughter, is woven around the swingy music typical of Gilbert and Sullivan. The story ends happily when the law-breakers are revealed as noblemen who are tired of the artificiality of civilized life and who are hence pardoned for their misdoings.

Officers for the year were Myron Shimer, president; Grace Counts, vice-president; Robert Carter, manager; and Martha Kaiser, secretary.

O. W. U. Band

The 1937-38 Ohio Wesleyan Concert Band claimed the distinction of being the first in recent years to make a concert appearance before Christmas vacation. The following program was played: "Adeste Fideles"; Chorale—"Lord Christ, God's Only Son" by Bach; "Minuet" from "Don Juan" by Mozart; selections from "No, No, Nanette" by Youmans; March—"Purple Carnival" by Alford. Another concert was given in April, and the annual Festival of the Lanterns Concert was presented as a feature of graduation week.

Under the direction of Paul E. Stevens, the Band had a successful year. Playing at the football games with an enthusiasm that inspired the team and the spectators, it created an atmosphere of school spirit.

Officers were: W. Hockman, president; G. Fowdon, vice-president; J. Boltinghouse, property manager; R. Simms, librarian; and W. Worley, secretary.

Violins: Counts, Wolfe, Metcalf, Robinson, Turner, Simms, Cort, Foit, Gegenheimer, Snyder, Krejpcio, Marshall, Holmes. Violas: Westwood, Shipps, Case, Hunter, Stelle. Violincellos: Weldon, Wells, Morch, Polley, Townsend. Bass: Fry. Flutes: F. The forty-one members of the Ohio Wesleyan Little Symphony were led to greater musical heights this last year by their director, Thomas F. Hibbard. This was the first time in the history of the orchestra that two complete symphonies had been played in one season. The compositions presented were "Symphony in G Minor" by Mozart and "The New World Symphony" by Anton Dvorak.

Featuring Professor William M. Wells, cellist, the orchestra opened its season with a fall concert presented in Sanborn Hall. Following this first appearance the Little Symphony performed several times in Gray Chapel and won much applause. In the spring another concert was given which added even more to the prestige of the organization. Professor Howard M. Jarratt was tenor soloist. Living up to their reputation, the musicians closed a most successful season with the annual commencement concert given with the Singers' Club.

Every Tuesday and Thursday afternoon from 4:15 until 6:00 Sanborn Hall reverberates with the sounds emanating from the instrument room where the artists are practicing. Besides the students there are a number of faculty members in the orchestra. They are Professors Paul E. Stevens, Harry E. Wood, and William M. Wells.

William Paxson acted as president this year, Emily Turner as secretary, Oliver Townsend as publicity manager, while Stanley Ebert was librarian assisted by Henry Krejpcio.

Editor-in-Chief Frank Graner, better known as Bijou’s energetic “Little G”, kept things moving so effectively that the Bijou staff was able to enjoy a spring vacation too. Barbara Lynch, as Women’s Editor, directed the difficult work on write-ups and managed a large number of ambitious sophomore try-outs. Assisting her with write-ups was the Associate Editor, Bob Bingham. Dave Wible, Managing Editor, with his candid camera, was in charge of the snap-shot division.

Gordon Fetter and John Rowe, as Co-Business Managers of the 1938 Le Bijou, very efficiently took charge of business matters in their department. In addition to their deluxe and diversified dabbling in bridge and Sulphur Spray "kibitzing", they found time to collaborate on the annual Le Bijou chapel program at which time representative men and women were selected.

Circulation and organization work on the book was successfully managed by Johnny, while Gordy took charge of all records of expenses, revenues, sales, and advertising contracts. Utilizing their limited printing facilities, the editorial staff of the Ohio Wesleyan Transcript this year published a modern paper, outspoken in its expression of campus opinion and interested in promoting student projects. An average staff of seventy-five students assembled material and set up an issue twice a week.

Robert Guelich acted as editor-in-chief, assisted by other members of the senior staff: Betty Jordan, Betty Lersch, Nevin Scrimshaw, Ed Taylor, and Betty Fickel. Junior issue-editors were: Bob Cooley, Jeanette Davis, Harry Evans, Mary Loning, Mary Pergande, Oliver Townsend, John McKeighan, Dick Stamberger, Eleanor Seiller, and Ruth Mary Watkins.

The business staff found the 1937-38 season a most profitable one financially speaking. Energetic freshman and sophomore try-outs effected a great increase in circulation, including a wide distribution outside of Delaware. A staff of fifty prepared the mail-outs, sold subscriptions, and solicited Delaware advertising. As business manager, William Derr directed the financial policy of the Transcript, with Martha Feudner as women's circulation manager. Juniors who worked on the staff preparatory to taking over senior positions were John Kirk and John Lawton, in charge of advertising and circulation respectively.

Ohio Wesleyan's "college humor", both on and off record, is presented to the student body in the monthly, mirth-provoking magazine, the Sulphur Spray. In addition to its regular issues, containing jokes, photography, and campus activities, the Spray sponsors the Sulphurette. This collection of student writings, edited twice a year by the English Writers' Club in cooperation with the Spray, affords an excellent opportunity for students interested in creative work to see their offerings published.

Originally started by Pi Delta Epsilon, the Sulphur Spray is now an independent publication. This year Bob Prentice was editor-in-chief with Ed Taylor as business manager.

The Press Club is an organization consisting of those students who regard journalism as a hobby, as a necessary part of their education, or as a life work. In order to become members they must show an interest in journalism, after which they are formally accepted into the group. The club includes, to a large extent, those working on the staffs of the Transcript, Le Bijou, and Sulphur Spray. Regular attendance is enforced by automatically dropping members missing three consecutive meetings; they are suspended pending reinstatement.

Leading journalists of Columbus and Delaware were the guest speakers at the meetings which took place on alternate Thursday evenings. As representatives of Ohio State University there were Richard Taylor, editor of the Ohio State humor magazine, the "Sun Dial", and Robert Priest, editor of the Ohio State yearbook, the "Makio". Other speakers were Beverly Kelly, press agent for Ringling Brothers' Circus, Gilson Wright, director of the Ohio Wesleyan News Bureau, Robert Brown, editor of the Columbus Citizen, Mr. Keenan, also from Columbus, and Walter D. Thomson of the Delaware Gazette. The last get-together of the organization was a dinner at Bun's. The two officers responsible for such a satisfactory year were Richard Weir and Robert Bingham.

The members of Omicron Delta Kappa, men's national honorary fraternity, are selected from the outstanding activity men on the campus on the basis of a point system. This year O.D.K. underwrote the Forum Committee and sponsored the Sulphur Swing, the proceeds from the latter being used to continue the lighting program in the library and to increase the fund for the student commons project. Jim Esch was president.

Y. W. C. A. Cabinet

The engineers that make the wheels of Y.W.C.A. turn swiftly are the members of its cabinet, each one a chairman of one of the organization's committees. These girls meet for problem discussions and business purposes three Sunday mornings a month; the fourth meeting is an informal supper session held on a Wednesday evening.

Miss Esther Ostlund is the peppy and able referee for all the girls' verbal battles and the splendid adviser for every Y.W.C.A. undertaking.

One of the high spots of the year came at its beginning—the Fall Retreat at Camp Wildwood. Good meals, the log fire, folk dancing, and most of all the fine discussions led by Miss McCue and Professor Sears will not be forgotten by the members of the cabinet and by those of Sophomore Council who attended.

This year the Wednesday evening meetings were conducted on the every-other-week plan, resulting in better programs and in a larger average attendance. Dr. Walker, Professor Hunter, and Miss Helen Barnes, a former Y. W. International Secretary, spoke to the group during the year.

The "Tiny Y" was printed as a new venture this year. It was edited by one of the committees and was received with much enthusiasm.

Eighteen active members in Y.W.C.A. this year were the girls who attended the summer camp for college women at Geneva, Wisconsin last June.

Sophomore Council, although in a sense a "junior Y.W.C.A. cabinet", has its own distinctive aims and enterprises. This year's twenty-four members were selected at the end of their freshman year as having been interested and prominent in Y.W. committee work. They began meeting a year ago under the heading of Freshman Commission and this fall the same group graduated into Sophomore Council. The girls last spring worked out a list of proposed amendments to the Panhellenic rules which would make life more natural and less strained for the freshmen during the rushing period.

Primarily a discussion group, the Council spent the early part of the year in studying Dale Carnegie's book, "How to Win Friends and Influence People", and continued with reports by different girls over a series of articles on marriage. Besides holding discussions concerning the problems of personal adjustment in a social world, the council members performed duties in the Y.W. office in Edgar Hall. There they acted as hostesses during the hours early in the morning and around noon when Miss Ostlund was busy at Monnett.

An achievement, distinctive to this year's group and worthy of note, was the formulation of a written purpose for Sophomore Council. Although the Council has been functioning for several years, this was never done before.

Y. M. C. A. Cabinet

The Young Men's Christian Association is an active and efficient group, under the guidance of Dean Somerville. As a part of the nation-wide organization for furthering Christian teachings and ideals in American colleges, these young men offer their time and services to improving conditions on this campus.

Early each school year, the Y.M.C.A. assumes the task of helping the incoming freshman men. The Y.M. handbook, published then, is of unlimited value in solving their many difficulties. As the first social event of the year, the Y.M., with Y.W., sponsors the freshman mixer. The date-hike in the spring is another event on their social calendar.

During each year, the Y.M.C.A., cooperating with other organizations, brings outstanding speakers to the campus. This year Ethan Colton, Frank Slutz, and Ralph Bates were introduced by these groups. Social service work is carried on at the Children's Home and in South Delaware. As a service to our own students, Y.M. sponsors a book exchange.

This year John Davies of Ohio Wesleyan was the secretary of the Ohio Area Student Council of the Y.M.C.A., and national and state conferences were well attended by other Ohio Wesleyan delegates.

Officers for this year were John Davies, president; Dick Clark, vice-president; Harry Kanostab, secretary; and Bill Nix, treasurer.

The Bible Club consists of those students who have an active interest in religion and have maintained an average of "B" or better in at least two Bible courses. This year the club met every three weeks on Wednesday evenings with John Kirk, the president, officiating. Current religious topics were discussed, and book reports were frequently presented by various members. President Soper spoke at one meeting, leading a discussion on the lectures given by Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr. Among other speakers were Norma Woodard, Charles Copenhaver, Sam Smith, and K. Sasaki. Meetings were held in the Monnett parlor and at several of the fraternity houses.

Bible Club

Another religious group on the campus is the Friars' Club, which attracts as members those students who either are actively preparing for the ministry or are interested in it. The combined efforts of students, professors, and visiting speakers made the gatherings this year very enlightening and educational. Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr and Dr. Aiken Smort were two of the outstanding guests. Informal meetings of a discussional nature were held every Thursday noon. Acting in the capacity of president, John Strout directed the meetings. Sam Smith was secretary-treasurer.

Kappa Delta Pi

Kappa Delta Pi, the honorary educational fraternity, was led this year by Lucian Copley, president, Margaret Meredith, vice-president, Abigail Curtis, secretary, Ethel Metcalf, treasurer, and Mrs. Crawl, faculty adviser. Guided by these officers, the members "strove to uphold the teaching career, to foster interest in the educational problems, and to maintain high scholastic standards."

The program of the year consisted in a panel discussion presented by some members of the University High School of Columbus; a trip to the University High School by the members of Ohio Wesleyan's Kappa Delta Pi; a panel discussion by the members of Professor Mathews' class in Tests and Measurements; and a talk by George A. Bowman, superintendent of the schools of Lakewood, Ohio. A varied and interesting program is typical of the planned schedule for each year.

The club is increasing in size every year. It holds initiation twice a year. A banquet is prepared for the new initiates at which time each is required to present a short speech. Thirteen were initiated in the fall, and more were added at the time of the late spring initiation. To become a member of Kappa Delta Pi, a student must have a "B" in six hours of education, a general point average equal to that of the college, and recommendations from the Education Department.

Since 1927 Pi Mu Epsilon, national mathematics honorary, has had a chapter on the Wesleyan campus. The student membership this year was ten, and several faculty personalities, including Professors Rowland, Crane, and Woodbury were also affiliated with the group. In order to qualify for membership a student must have a point average of 2.5 after a semester of calculus or one of 2.2 after a year of calculus. In addition, a general standing of 1.85 must be maintained.

Officers for this year were Boyce McDaniel, president, and Margaret Meredith, secretary.

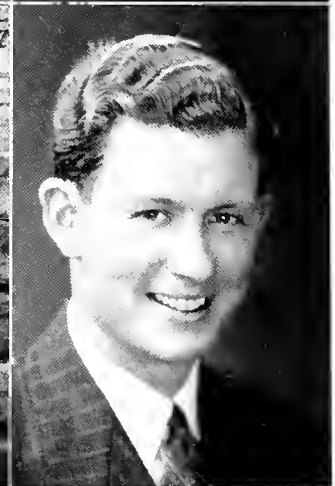

Pi Mu Epsilon

Members of the Chemistry Club are those students who are especially interested in chemistry. Under the direction of Ivan Hall, president, and Clara Sesler, secretary, the club met this year on the second Wednesday of every month. One of the visiting speakers was C. E. Waring of the Frigidaire Company in Dayton, a Wesleyan alumnus, who spoke on the industrial possibilities for chemists. Trips, arranged by Professor Manuel of the Chemistry Department, were taken, including visits to the factories of the Holophone Glass Company and the Pharis Tire and Rubber Company.

Delta Phi Delta

Delta Phi Delta is the art honorary which requires for membership a "B" overage in twenty-four hours of art. The members are in charge of the art exhibits for Monnett Day and the displays of work in the Dean's office. Selling candy at the art hall every day to earn money for national dues and convention dues and giving teas for the art students are some of their regular activities. The annual Founder's Day Banquet is held in May at which time the officers are elected. Isabelle McClenahan, this year's president, will attend the national convention in Boulder, Colorado.

Pi Sigma Alpha

Upsilon chapter of Pi Sigma Alpha, national honorary political science fraternity, has been an organized group on the Wesleyan campus for the past five years. At the spring election, honorary membership is open to all juniors and seniors who have maintained a minimum average of B for ten hours of major work in this department. Professor Kessler advised the group this year, with Clyde Lewis acting as president. Plans were formulated for a more active group program in which prominent speakers on political affairs would be presented to the students in the near future.

The Home Economics Club is designed to give girls who are domestically inclined a chance to talk it over. Anyone taking a course in the department may become a member. Meetings were held once a month, an enjoyable one being the Christmas party when clothing was brought for needy children. An outstanding speaker of the year was Mrs. George Hollister, recently returned from China, who told about Oriental styles.

Miss Titsworth was the adviser for the club, with Marie Chapmon the president. Other members included the Misses Abell, E. Adams, Alder, Bailey, Bennett, Benton, Bogg, Boyd, Brock, Brown, V. Brown, Burr, Burnett, Bushfield, Carlson, Carter, Child, Collord, Coppage, Crane, Culp, Doub, Eastman, Eberman, Eichelberger, Feudner, Fouse, Gallaher, Gardner, Gedge, Gerstner, Golay, Gott, Griffin, Hageman, Haller, Hansen, Hart, Heckman, Hildebrand, Horsley, Kaiser, Keltner, Kilgore, Kneen, Krause, Lansdowne, Leisenheimer, Lindstrom, Loomis, Luessen, McCandless, McGraw, Morshall, Michell, Moore, Poling, Probasco, Riemann, Riley, Robb, Roberts, Robinson, Ruple, Schory, Schulz, Sewell, Shafter, Showan, Shimmon, Skinner, R. Sociology Club

At Ohio Wesleyan, the membership of the Sociology Club is composed of students who have enrolled in at least one course in the Sociology Department. In addition, the club is always ready to admit into its organization anyone with a genuine interest in sociology. This group gets together once a month for a social meeting under the supervision of Professors Byron Fox and Guy Sarvis.

Various programs were presented throughout the year. Speakers included several students who gave interesting accounts of their personal experiences in field work last summer. Among the guest speakers were professional social-service workers from near-by cities who gave the students valuable information and advice pertaining to the work in their respective fields. The club sponsored a trip to Marysville, where its members were able to observe conditions in the Women's Reformatory.

Guided by Mary Anstine, president, with the assistance of Florence Gerstner, secretary-treasurer, the club completed another successful and beneficial year, not only for students majoring in sociology but for all students interested in that subject.

Admission to English Writers' Club is granted to those submitting a manuscript of sufficient merit. This year the club members contributed original poems, essays, and short stories to the Sulphur Spray and sponsored two issues of the Sulphurette. The club also held a creative writing contest open only to its members. A formal banquet was held at the annual election of officers. This year's officers were: Margaret Meredith, president; Bob Bingham, vice-president; Marjorie Mahon, secretary; and Bob Stevens, treasurer. Miss Drennan and Professor Ritter were faculty advisers.

English Writers' Club

Members of Alpha Alpha Kappa, the home economics honorary, are those girls who are especially interested in this line of work. Last October for the first annual conference of the college home economics clubs in the district, members of Alpha Alpha Kappa met with the Wesleyan club's officers and planned the conference. A luncheon and several teas were also sponsored by the honorary, with many delegates from other colleges attending.

Officiating at the monthly meetings were Eleanor Kissner, president, and Eloise Kilgore, secretary-treasurer.

Panhellenic Council

As Panhellenic president this year, Jane Burkhardt said, "Panhellenic has been developed on this campus to build up a cooperative spirit among the different sororities, to discuss and settle problems arising in the sororities, and to set up a local basis or foundation upon which sororities can function."

Last fall the twenty-six members of Panhellenic Council returned refreshed from their vacations only to be faced by the first problem which greets every Panhellenic Council upon the opening of college. This was the directing of sorority rushing. The questions arising from it were discussed at daily luncheon meetings. Rushing was conducted as in the previous year, except that it was deferred until a week later. The sororities were allowed eighteen freshman women, three transfers, and an unlimited number of upperclass pledges.

The members were kept very much engaged with the large amount of business which was transacted during the year. One of the most important of the many actions was that of drawing up a new system of rushing rules, which will be put into effect next fall. It also became one of the Panhellenic aims to regulate the size of the chapters on the Ohio Wesleyan campus.

The social chairmen were organized under Miss Josephine Montgomery. These chairmen were given the responsibility of planning for the tea-dances sponsored by Panhellenic throughout the year. In a like manner, the pledge mistresses were assembled under the leadership of Mary Belle Whitacre. They held meetings every two weeks in order to discuss and to attempt to solve problems which arose in their respective pledge classes. The pledge mistresses also endeavored to create among the freshmen such a Panhellenic spirit as exists among the active chapters on the campus.

The president of each sorority automatically becomes a member of Panhellenic Council. The offices rotate from year to year in the order of the chapters' founding on the campus. Last fall a new plan went into effect whereby each sorority also sent one underclass representative.

This year Jane Burkhardt acted as president, Betty Ballantine as secretary, and Margaret Beamer as treasurer. Dean of Women, Mary Helen Fretts, was the faculty adviser.

Sorority House- Mothers

With an unusual spirit of cooperation and fellowship, sorority house-mothers supply the "homey" touches—from an extra can-opener to motherly advice—for Wesleyan's sorority women. Many is the time they find it necessary to encourage some woebegone girls who are attempting to cook dinner for their dates. These house-mothers serve as chaperons at the rooms during Panhellenic date hours; in addition, they are the guests of their respective sororities at chapter social functions. Perhaps the greatest satisfaction of their year is in the gratifying results of the traditional spring housecleaning. House-mothers are: Mrs. Willard Galleher, Alpha Chi Omega; Mrs. Janet Todd, Alpha Gamma Delta; Mrs. Elaise Hull, Alpha Xi Delta; Mrs. Dean Friedly, Chi Omega; Mrs. John Roby, Delta Delta Delta; Mrs. R. T. Graff, Delta Gamma; Mrs. Ross Alexander, Gamma Phi Beta; Mrs. Marriatt, Kappa Alpha Theta; Mrs. Fred Wickham, Kappa Delta; Mrs. H. O. Care, Kappa Kappa Gamma; Mrs. Clara Messick, Phi Mu; Mrs. Nell Smith, Pi Beta Phi; and Mrs. Jack Taylor, Sigma Kappa.

In Memoriam

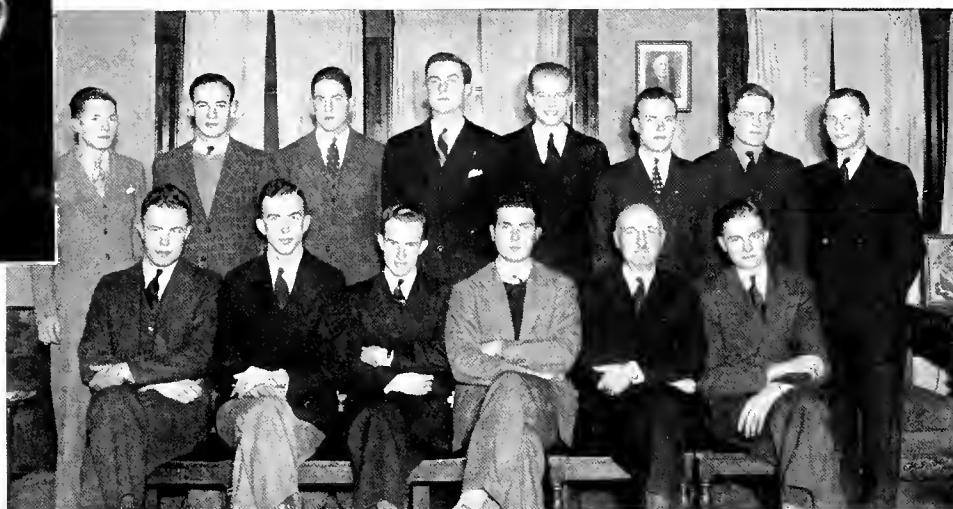

Miss Jane McNinch

The untimely death of Miss Jane McNinch, assistant professor of Home Economics at Ohio Wesleyan University, was a sudden tragedy to her many students and friends. Miss McNinch accepted her position in 1935 and was an active member of the staff until her death in 1937. Previous to her teaching career at Wesleyan, she had attended Northwestern University for two years and had later received her Master's degree from Columbia University. Combining theory with practice, she acted as the head of the domestic science department in Washington High School at Port Huron, Ohio, until her professorship at Wesleyan.

Miss McNinch was a well-known and respected personality on the campus. Her charm, her willingness to help, and her high hopes for everyone made her loved by all who knew her. One of her closest friends on the faculty said that Miss McNinch had a particularly keen sense of value and discrimination. She saw only the important things in life and forgot the petty incidents. Hers was victorious living, and she is greatly missed by both the student body and faculty.

Interfraternity Council . . First Semester

Thirteen Greek organizations are represented in the Interfraternity Council which meets on alternate Tuesday evenings to discuss current group problems and to encourage a growing feeling of fellowship among the various men's organizations on the campus.

After dinner at one of the fraternity houses, the group, comfortably seated around a roaring fireplace, discussed mutual problems in a friendly "hash session" manner. As prexy of all the fraternity presidents, Chuck Bird presided over first semester meetings. Don Williams acted as secretary. Dean Somerville, jovial and understanding adviser, was always ready to offer any necessary advice.

The continuation of the fifteen men pledge limit was unanimously agreed upon by the Council at one of its early meetings. Plans were made for the annual exchange dinners at which the coeds of Stuyvesant make their debut into the fraternity world. One of the most important projects of the Council this semester was the standardization of hell-week activities. It was decided that much of the actual hazing should be eliminated with the promotion of a constructive program of group coordination. The Council also cooperated with the Y.M.C.A. in an effort to further the social activities of independent men.

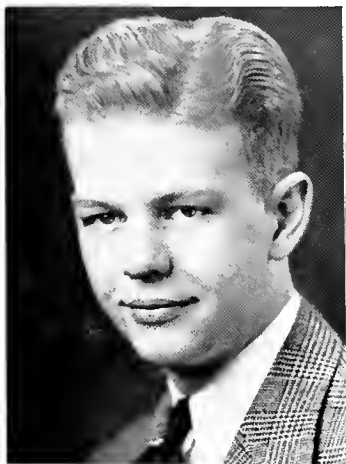

Second semester the Interfraternity Council discussed many pertinent fraternity and campus problems. In cooperation with the policy advocated by many national fraternity organizations, all fraternities were cautioned in regard to their activities during hell-week. The Council stressed the fact that excessive hazing was to be avoided and that all hell-weeks were to be held as nearly at the same time as possible.

As an aid to students in selecting their courses, a vocational guidance program was sponsored by the Council in the latter part of March. The program, under the direction of a committee headed by James Durham and Wilson Hannahs, consisted of a series of informal talks by several outstanding men, leaders in their respective professions. Lectures were open to both men and women. Also, the group voted to sponsor the suggested marriage course as a part of the university curriculum.

At the second semester meetings of the Interfraternity Council, Paul Bennett presided as president with Jack Anderson as secretary-treasurer. Other representatives were: Manus Glancy, James Moist, Herbert Whiting, John Roth, John Nordin, James Durham, Richard Weir, Sterling Pfeiffer, Sidney Bailey, Charles Bird, and Victor Malinovsky.

Fraternity House Mothers

In the first year of its existence the Independent Men's Organization, comprising about one-sixth of the men on the Ohio Wesleyan campus, offered its members a most progressive program. Well-attended meetings were held approximately once a month, and at them plans were discussed for activities in social, academic, and athletic fields. The organization helped unaffiliated men, especially freshmen, to adjust themselves to the problems of college life.

Noteworthy were the cooperative plans worked out between the Independents and the fraternities. The unaffiliated men were given the opportunity of using the "frat" houses one night a week, and they were also invited to the Greek formals. In addition, the Independent group collaborated with the Y.M.C.A. in some of its activities.

The social functions of the year were varied and highly successful. Throughout both semesters smokers were held at Murphy Hall. The winter formal featured the Playing Parsons amid colored lights at Stuyvesant, and Jim Ferris, social chairman, planned a novel barn dance in the spring at Rohrbaugh's, a farm outside of Delaware.

The Independents took an active part in most intramural sports under the leadership of Ed Banasik, athletic chairman.

Serving as president of the group and also as the Independent representative on Student Council was Wendell Sellers. John Patterson kept the books in the capacity of secretary-treasurer, and Dr. Warner filled the post of adviser.

Director of Athletics

Coach Gauthier

The athletic program at Ohio Wesleyan is conceived to furnish an opportunity for joyful participation in sports of all kinds where there is student interest.

The past year has been one of the most fruitful years in the Athletic Department, not for contests won, but for the interest in a great variety of sports. The inter-collegiate competition furnishes an opportunity for the highest type of competition; and Ohio Wesleyan students have, in this past year, given enthusiastically of their best in this competition.

Freshman sports have furnished experience and training for future varsity competition by pitting freshmen against varsity squads and other freshman groups. Many of these freshmen look forward to playing on the varsity teams at Ohio Wesleyan in the future.

The intramural program has gathered into competition every type of sport that students desire. Intense interest and great rivalry among the various teams has been evident throughout all the intramural activities.

Over ninety per cent of the men students in Ohio Wesleyan are participating in the athletic program. The joy and fellowship of competition in hard played games is productive of sportsmanship and an ability to mix and associate with other men.

G. E. Gauthier,
Director of Athletics

The two main problems facing our Athletic Board are the promotion of minor sports and the financing of our athletic program. The fine showing of our Tennis, Swimming, and Fencing teams, along with the improvement shown by Dean Somerville's Cross Country squad, shows that a solution to the first problem has been reached. The financial problem is the important one. An ambitious gridiron program of ten games has been scheduled for next year, at the request of the football team. If we can produce some victories, this should alleviate our present condition considerably. Here's hoping that the Bottling Bishops are tops in 1938!

Pat Brooks
Student Body Athletic Representative

The policies and activities of Ohio Wesleyan in intercollegiate athletics are under the direction of the University Athletic Board. As a charter member of the Buckeye Conference, Ohio Wesleyan is governed by the regulations of that organization, and it is the duty of the Board to carry out its decisions. The more important functions of this body are to approve athletic schedules, to grant awards for varsity sports, to appoint student managers, to determine the financial policy for the year, to sanction the eligibility of players, and to arrange intramural activities.

At present the members of the Board are: Professor Conger, chairman, Coach Gauthier, Dean Somerville, Mr. Watkins, and Professors Manuel and Roberts. For 1937-38, the student members, elected by popular vote, were Lou Banks and Pat Brooks. The latter will continue to serve next year along with a new representative chosen to replace Banks.

The cooperation of eight authorities in the field of athletics makes the Physical Education Department a center of interest on the Ohio Wesleyan campus. The men students enthusiastically welcome this opportunity to develop physically as well as mentally and are constantly striving to become eligible for the varsity teams.

Professor William "Doc" Roberts, a Harvard graduate, is head of the department and has gained renown as the team physician and as the instructor of hygiene. He is a great favorite with the football and basketball players.

Director of Athletics for sixteen years, George Gauthier, well known as the "Little Giant", is the head coach of football and track. He is working hard to build up the football team for next year's victories.

"Doc" Freeman is the director of all required work for men, in addition to being a physical-therapist. As supervisor of light treatments, he finds the coeds preferring them to chapel.

Coach of the varsity basketball and baseball teams is Ray Detrick. One of the best basketball coaches in Ohio, Detrick has proved his ability in the past by putting out outstanding teams. His delight in telling amusing stories about people was displayed in chapel when he introduced the members of the basketball team.

Jim Glancy, "Pappy of the Freshmen", coaches freshman football and basketball and is director of Intramurals. He coaches the successful and widely known swimming team.

William Carson is the trainer. A former Wesleyan student, he spent three years in football and track and was the champion boxer and wrestler in his weight.

The N.Y.A. boss is Art Lewis. He coaches fencing, boxing, wrestling, and freshman baseball.

When Professor Wiley is not teaching psychology, coaching tennis occupies his time.

Coaches and Trainers

Mass meetings held weekly on Fridays proved to be among the most popular and most consistently attended of the Wesleyan chapels. The students gathered to the strains of martial music vigorously contributed by the enlarged college band. Tommy Davis, in the capacity of head cheerleader, aroused the Wesleyanites to a high pitch of enthusiasm which was carried over to the stadium and court. Throughout the season school spirit remained at a high level, although the teams were not always successful. This was due largely to the efforts of the cheerleaders. They were untiring and constantly peppy under all circumstances, and during intermissions and time-out periods cheers were promptly forthcoming from the squad. Their spirit and zeal instilled in the student body a desire to win and helped the teams on to victory.

Three veterans, Tommy Davis, Dave Schnitzer, and Bob Burns formed the backbone of the squad and gave a fine technical performance both on the chapel platform and on the field. Lee Liggett and Joe Freeman, novices at cheerleading, proved outstanding and succeeded in arousing the student body by their clever impromptu speeches and their energetic noise-raising efforts. Probably the greatest center of interest on the squad were the freshman girls, Marjorie Waffenschmidt, Betty Gaylord, Jean Sanborn, and Betty Trumbull. They were picked from among the residents of Stuyvesant by the captain of the cheerleaders. Tommy was also responsible for their training, none of them previously having had any experience in this field. After hours of practice they successfully appeared on Selby Field attired in red and black. Thereafter they cheered at all of Wesleyan's home games and also journeyed to the game with Miami which was Migration Day for Wesleyan.

As first assistant to the coach, a senior manager holds one of the most responsible positions in sports activities. In fact, many graduates state that their training as senior manager has proved equally as beneficial to them as any five-hour business course. The organization of a large staff of underclassmen is the senior manager's executive and administrative responsibility. Keeping this group properly organized and harmonious is training in social psychology.

Student Managers

Ed Moon, industrious football manager in charge of valuable equipment, organized the largest staff. Responsible for practices and multiple chart work, Jack Anderson completed his year as basketball manager. Roger Early, managing fall and spring meets, held the position of track manager. Bob Ulrich, among other duties as baseball manager, arranged a spring schedule with southern universities. Jim Rockwell efficiently discharged his duties as minor sports manager in fencing, swimming, tennis, and golf. Manager of intramural sports, Howard Baldwin arranged varied sports events, in which eighty-five per cent of the Wesleyan men participated.

Membership in "W" Clan comes to the men who prove themselves worthy of athletic letters in major or minor sports. These athletes are banded together for fellowship and service, meeting once a month. This year the group offered to freshman numerals an associate membership to stimulate further participation in athletics. The organization also took action urging that training for freshmen be less strenuous and that Ohio Wesleyan remain in the Buckeye Conference. "W" Clan helped sponsor the high school relays held in the spring. Jim McKinnie was president.

Gamma Phi is the minor sports honorary. Its members are components of minor sports teams engaging in intercollegiate competition. The teams include tennis, fencing, golf, swimming, track, and gymnastics. The members soared into a place of recognition this year with a fine chapel exhibition of minor sports activities. In February their gymnasts performed at the annual Fun Fest. Officers were Stan Minor, president, and John Carhart, secretary.

The graduating class of '37 left enormous gaps in the Bishop squad. With the loss of Hagaman, Heinlen, and Whalen in the back-field, combined with the graduation of H. Miller, Morgan, Musson, and E. Miller in the line, the sophomores and juniors prepared for a strenuous season.

A blow met the squad when Quarterback Stalter, who was to hold this key position, did not return. Along with him, Trubey, Walker, Cruse, and Harrison found their way to the ineligibility list. Consequently, Gauthier was forced to rearrange his squad and initiate various players into positions where they were completely inexperienced.

Football Squad

Despite the small squad, the team showed wonderful spirit, always giving their best in an effort to win against better teams. To win meant to play over their heads. And this they demonstrated by winning those games which were considered the highlights of the season: the Homecoming game against Cincinnati and the Dad's Day game with Rollins.

The team, with the little experience in actual playing that they possessed, came through with their new assignments remarkably well. A debt of appreciation is owed to these boys who met the difficult situation to the best of their ability.

Glancy, honorary captain

Schroeder, most valuable player

Manus Glancy, who led the trauncing that the Bishops dealt Cincinnati on Homecoming Day, proved to be one of Gauthier's stellar backfield men. Because Glancy was outstanding throughout the season, he was elected honorary captain at the end of the year.

Selected by the team as the most valuable player for the season, Fred "Butch" Schroeder was thereby awarded the Bun Trophy. Due to injuries, he was out of a few games; in spite of this handicap he proved his outstanding ability.

Another great loss in the senior rank is Jim McKinnie. This lanky end played consistent football throughout his career at Wesleyan. "Big Jim" led the Bishops in their opening scrap against Pittsburgh.

Lou Banks was pulled from his end position to be faced with the difficult task of ball-packing. His speed in the open field was a distinct advantage to the Bishops. The team's largest score was rolled up on Dad's Day against Rollins when he was captain.

Another Bishop who blossomed out for Gauthier was Willis Turner. This husky tackle fought his way to the first string and displayed consistency throughout the season. A major key in the line, Turner led the Bishops against Toledo.

The closing game of the season with Ohio University found John Rossman as co-captain. Rossman, in his four years of football, constantly made it tough for his opponents. Gauthier will have difficulty in filling his tackle position.

Pat Brooks, who stars in punting and passing, adequately held down his fullback position again this year. The eyes of Wesleyan fans were glued upon him many times; and in the future, Brooks promises many more thrills.

The All-Ohio team, picked for the "Cleveland Plain Dealer", mentioned only one Wesleyan player on the first team. Inconspicuous as his position was, Center Vic Malinovsky could not be overlooked by the opposing coaches and players. Playing on either side of him were Mike Caputo and Bob Haas. Both proved they were deserving of favorable comment, Bob Haas having been named second-string guard on the All-Buckeye list.

Bill Jones and Les Michael were two of the finest backfield men that the Bishops could wish for. Bill Jones carried the burden of the blocking and will undoubtedly pave the way for many of the Bishop scores in the future. Les Michael proved in the past season that he was an all-around, as well as a consistent, backfield man.

Pete Rardin was another husky and promising guard—the type of lineman that would please any coach.

The diminutive Harvey Cunningham demonstrated his ability as a ball carrier in the Rollins game and deserved much credit for his all-round, plucky football playing.

Two Bishops who played their last for Ohio Wesleyan this year were John Reckard and Joe Amrein. Reckard was co-captain of the Ohio University game and Amrein led the squad against Western Reserve.

John Mikuluk was an end who saw plenty of action—a chance he rightfully deserved. Playing the same position was Francis Poling who received his well-earned service letter.

There still remains to be seen a more rugged and spirited Bishop than Oliver Hess, who played in the backfield. He is the type of athlete that Wesleyan wants.

Fortunately, big Ed Cady will be back next year as a senior to hold down his tackle berth. It is to be hoped that next fall this husky boy will play outstanding football, just as he has in the past.

Hal Kattus, a squatty, fighting guard, was another Bishop who saw plenty of action and will undoubtedly make a place for himself next year.

Among the sophomores, three players proved definitely that they will be capable of replacing next year the positions vacated by graduation. They were Harry Hamilton, John Patterson, and Bert Kessel. All had considerable experience in the past season.

Basketball Squad

Amid the yells and screams of this year's exciting basketball games, the all-sophomore team played with the coolness and steadiness of a professional ball club. At times the passing and shooting was a bit ragged, due to the relative inexperience of the majority of the players. Individually they were very good, but they lacked to a degree the telepathy, snap, and acute accuracy of a top-ranking team.

The team won four and lost six of their games in the Buckeye Conference. But winning three out of their last four contests, they showed that they had improved almost one hundred per cent during the season. The best game that they played was their final contest against Ohio University. The team worked like a clock, their shots were accurate, and they far outplayed the strong Ohio team. The Bishops also came closer to marking the defeat of Marshall, the Buckeye champs, than any other school. Holding the lead until the last two minutes of play, Wesleyan completely outdid Marshall in the first and second quarters.

The Bishop cagers found their Eastern tour very helpful in finding their defects, even though the majority of the schools played were much stronger and more experienced.

Prospects for next season appear very bright with the addition of the forwards, Buttermore and Hartman, from the freshman squad. The competition will be much greater for the first-string positions.

Rohr, most valuable player

Receiving the Bun Trophy, which is awarded to the most valuable player on the basketball squad for the season, Bill Rohr proved his worth to the team in many ways. He not only steadied the game, but was consistently sinking his clean long shots when close, set-up shots were tied up by the opponents. The scoring possibilities depended almost entirely upon the combination of Rohr and Reiser.

Jim Reiser had the honor of being the leading scorer for the season. This speedy, fighting forward continually ran circles around his man and couldn't be kept from scoring. Taking wild shots from the backboard, Reiser would always be under the basket to make them good.

Considered by many to be the most outstanding ball-handler on the team, Leo Walker was the only junior. His tricky passing and dribbling made possible many Bishop leads and second-half come-backs. Walker was also an exceptionally good basket-tosser.

With these three men back on the squad next year, Wesleyan should emerge on top as the 1938-39 season of Buckeye basketball comes to a close.

Reiser

Walker

Kirchwehm

Donchess

Forsythe

At center position, big Tim Kirchwehm performed his pivot job with exceptional ability. To this position belongs the important duty of breaking up the opponents' defense and making set-up shots for the forwards. Kirchwehm's height and experience made it possible for him to handle this job well.

One of the best all-around defense men on the squad was Steve Donchess. Always in the heat of the game, his man found it almost impossible to pass his watchful guarding. Donchess knew his basketball and played many games through to the last minute.

Homer Forsythe also played center and was considered to be the most improved cager on the team. No doubt he will find a steady job at center in the future if he continues his fine basketball. Forsythe also handled the important pivot position with exceptional ability.

The passing and teamwork of these three cagers improved considerably throughout the season. Coach Detrick can expect a wonderful team to develop from his already outstanding Bishop Basketballers.

The fact still remains that no team is better than its substitutes. Good substitutes make the competition strong for the first-string positions, and therefore all men make an effort to play their best.

Lamar Faught, a fast and scrappy floorman, backed Donchess at guard. Faught is a sophomore and will be back on the floor next season, fighting for a first birth.

Another sophomore who will be backing Forsythe and Kirchwehm at center position is Dick Finebrock. Finebrock is the tallest man on the squad, besides being a steady and consistent player.

Backing the forwards, Dave Patterson saw quite a bit of action and was a fairly consistent scorer. Chase Patterson, another sophomore, played guard.

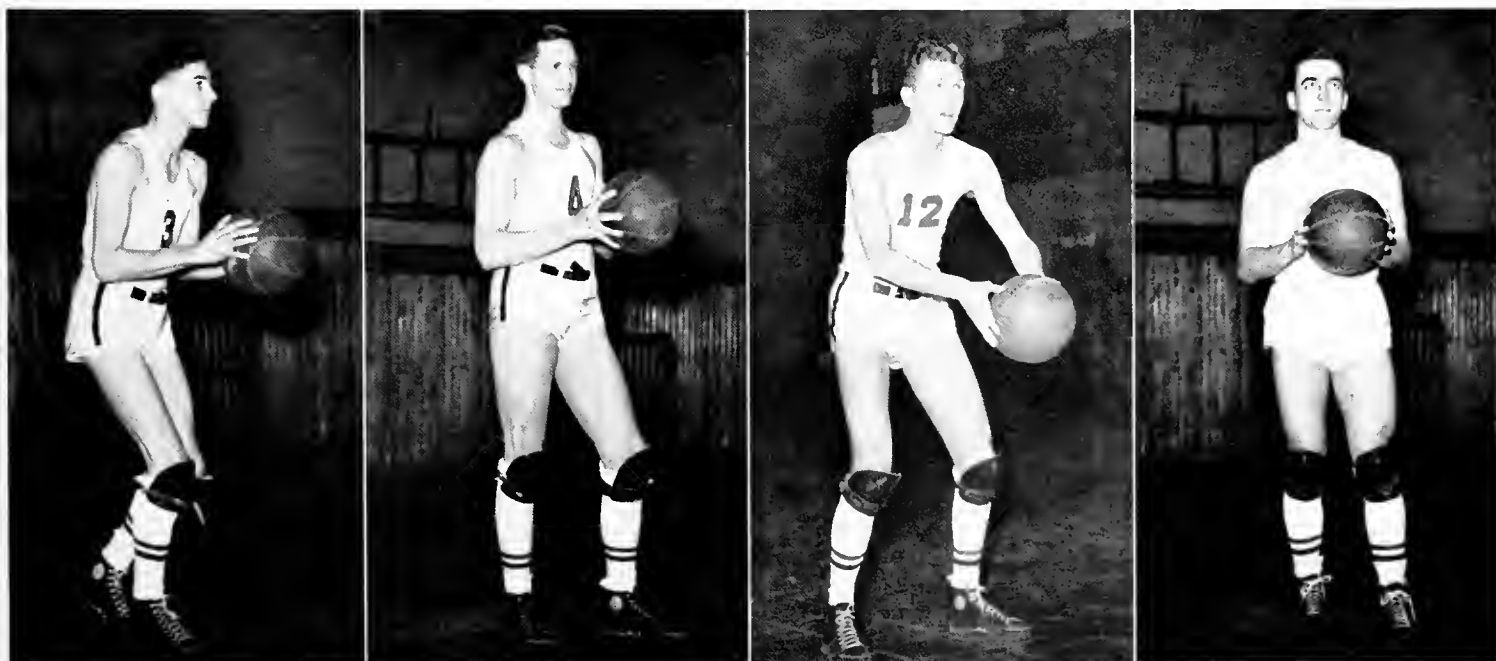

With this squad composed mainly of sophomores, the Bishops next year ought to have a team that will find its way to the heights of Buckeye basketball.

Finishing the 1937 season with five victories and five defeats to Buckeye opponents, the Bishop diamonders ranked third in the race for the Conference championship. The Detrickmen won a total of twelve games, including practice contests, and lost only six for the complete season. The losses were met at the hands of Ohio University, Miami, and Michigan, thus proving that Wesleyan possessed a team far above average.

The opener against Cincinnati found the Bishops starting the season with an average of 1.000 per cent, trouncing their opponents 9-6. Later in the season Cincinnati fell at the hands of the Detrickmen again, returning home with an 18-11 defeat hovering over their heads.

Defeating Dayton twice, the first game by a 12-5 score and the second 7-6, the Bishops found in the Flyers a weak match.

The team split with Marshall, losing 2-1 in the first contest and winning the second by a score of 8-7.

To the outstanding Ohio University team the Bishops bowed twice, by scores of 9-3 and 10-2.

The squad lost to Miami two heart-breaking games, which they were doped to win. The first game was lost by three runs and the second by one run.

Thus, the Wesleyan baseballers ended the Buckeye Conference season with a .555 per cent average.

Baseball Squad

Art Thomas received credit for the greater majority of Bishop victories. Responsible for the meteoric rise of the team in their 1936 campaign, Thomas upheld his record in the 1937 series. Depending upon his fast-breaking curves to hold his opponents in check, he allowed only five conference defeats, and two of those were by a mere one point. Equally outstanding at hitting, Thomas, along with Schroeder, led the rally that defeated Marshall, 8-7.

Jim Morgan, Bishop second baseman, became noted for his snappy field work and his telling eye at slugging. Always keeping his errors at a minimum, Morgan will be missed when the team starts its 1938 campaign.

On the receiving end of Thomas' curves and Hulsbeck's speedballs was Glen Stover. Stover split with Ollie Hess at this position. Lacking the eye for batting that Hess possessed, Stover did not see quite as much action, although he was on a par with anyone as far as catching was concerned.

Banging out as many home runs as any other Bishop, Lou Banks split positions at first base and left field. His homer, with bases loaded in the first inning of the Dayton contest, gave the Detrickmen a lead that was never overcome in a 12-5 victory.

Baseball Summary

Sluggar George Morrison, the red-headed veteran of Wesleyan baseball, was the leader of many Bishop rallies. He occupied third base and held this position fairly consistently. Morrison also ranked third in batting average by connecting with enough pills to give him eighteen runs for the season.

At the top of the slugging list was Roger Lockwood. Playing center field, Lockwood was not only an unerring player, but led the hitting in the Cincinnati, Oberlin, Dayton, and Wittenberg contests. With Lockwood back in the line-up next year, Wesleyan's prospects will not look bad.

Closely following Lockwood's total of twenty-three runs was Butch Schroeder, with twenty-two runs for the season. Schroeder's double in the tenth inning of the Marshall game brought in Walker for the deciding score. He occupied right field throughout the season and also was the leader of many last inning rallies.

One of the most consistent players on the squad was the wearer of the mask and shin-guards, Ollie Hess. An equally consistent hitter, Hess promises to be the backbone of the Wesleyan team in their 1938 series.

Leo Walker, who promises to hold down a first-string position in the 1938 campaign, split births with Morgan at second base and also had his hand at pitching.

Malcolm Lockwood found his all-around field ability an advantage. He substituted at third plate, short stop, and center field. "Bus" Parks also covered the short stop position. Both of these Bishops will be back on the '38 squad.

Feeling out the batting power of opposing teams, Harold Hulsbeck usually fed his speedball for the first few innings. Wesleyan's victory over Denison was credited to this husky boy, with his good pitching and his exceptional batting.

Splitting with Banks at first base, Chase Knight was able to use his height to advantage at this important position. Also having a batting average which was favorable, Knight will undoubtedly boost the '38 squad, along with the others.

Bowing to Miami only, the 1937 Bishop thin-clads finished every other dual meet victoriously. They defeated Ohio University, 71-60; Muskingum 104-27; Oberlin, 90½-40½; and Cincinnati, 95½-34½; but lost to Miami, 77-54. As time for the Buckeye Conference meet approached, Wesleyan, according to the dope-sheet, ranked in second place.

The late afternoon of May 22, 1937 found Miami and Wesleyan tied for first place in the Buckeye. Only the relay remained to be run. The thrilling finish of this race saw Miami emerge as the winner of the relay and of the meet, just barely nosing out the Bishop wing-feet by a total score of 73-71.

Track Squad

Outstanding performances of the Conference meet included Diehl's three firsts, the low and high hurdles and a new record for the broad-jump. Recker sailed over the high-jump bar to win this event, giving Diehl his only second place. Keckley won the century, and Brooks turned in a first for the shot-put. These firsts, combined with seven second places and a few thirds, almost won the Buckeye for Wesleyan.

Chuck Harmon copped two seconds in the Buckeye, running second to Diehl in the low hurdles and broad jump. Falling while running the high hurdles, he injured his leg and did not finish.

Gibby Diehl, Wesleyan's mainstay, who won at least two firsts in every meet and in the Ohio University contest took four firsts, scored a total of nineteen points in the Buckeye, also breaking the broad jump record. Diehl is by far the most outstanding trackster to enter Wesleyan for some time.

John Keckley beat out Mills of Miami to win the hundred and ran a close second in the 220 to pull up his share of points in the Buckeye.

In memoriam stands the high jump record of Bob Recker, as his contribution to Wesleyan track. Recker was fatally injured in a train accident last summer. He bettered his record at Oberlin and tallied his first place in the Buckeye.

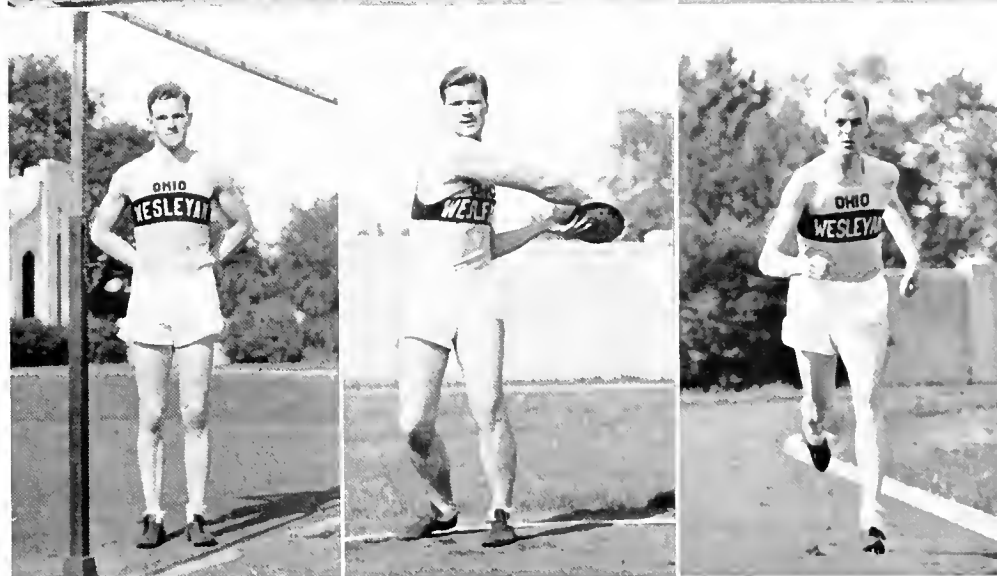

Snediker usually managed to make his quota of points in the discus, while Hugh Gilray ran as first man in the four man mile relay.

Track Summary

Stan Minor and Jim Esch both competed in the 440, and between the two, usually crossed the finish line in one of the first four places, even though the opposition was extremely strong in this distance.

Hurling the javelin, John Carothers copped a first against Ohio University and a second place in the Buckeye Conference meet. In the latter he was defeated by Bell of Miami who made a record heave of 209' 6½".

Wesleyan's record-breaking shot-putter, Pat Brooks, set a new mark at 42' 10½" in the first dual meet of the season. Later Brooks furthered his record by tossing the iron ball 43' 10¼" at Oberlin, and accounted for a first place in the Buckeye, although failing to reach his previous distance.

Nevin Scrimshaw and Ralph Hoke were the Bishop leather-lungs who chewed cinders in the two-mile jaunt. A little weak in this distance, in comparison with other teams, the two managed to pull down a few points for Wesleyan.

Boyce McDaniel and John Smith pounded the cinders in the mile and half mile respectively. Both of these wing-feet displayed wonderful form, and both placed in all dual meets. Smith accounted for a second marker in the 880 in the Buckeye.

Winning his event in three of the dual meets, Pete Mitchell pole-vaulted himself to a second place in the Buckeye.

Walt Baker competed in the 440, showing improvement throughout the season, as did Monus Glancy, who undertook the art of pole-vaulting, an event in which he had previously had no experience.

Bill Hollister was another miler of no lesser ability. In the Ohio University meet he ran a 4:38.5 race, which was just two seconds slower than the Wesleyan record for that event.

The freshman squad brought to light such tracksters as Rath in the sprints; Schmick in the mile; Lightner in the 880 and discus; Ferris in the high jump; Mansfield in the 440; and Patterson in the javelin.

Finishing the most successful season in the history of Ohio Wesleyan swimming, the team mourns the loss for next year of only three seniors, Stan Minor in the backstroke, John Carhart in the breaststroke, and Dave Jackson in the 440 yard free-style. The seven varsity men remaining on the squad, combined with the strong freshman prospects, will compose next year's team, which outwardly promises to be stranger than the one this year.

Weak only in diving and the breakstroke, the team was fairly well-balanced. Gordon Dale received honors as high-point man for the season by amassing a total individual score of 180 points. He was closely followed by Ed Moran, whose total winnings and places summed to 174 points. Not far behind them was the latter's brother Joe, who succeeded in scoring 159 points for the season.

Swimming

The Moran brothers hold all individual Wesleyan pool records, with the exception of the 220 yard free-style held by Gordon Dale. These three Bishops also hold the medley relay record, and the same three along with George Gentle share the honors for the 400 yard free-style relay time.

Pitting their strength against some of the strongest teams in this part of the country, such as Kenyon, Western Reserve, and Michigan State, the Bishops lost four out of fourteen meets. They defeated Ohio University, Case, Cincinnati, DePauw, Carnegie Tech, Oberlin, Wittenberg, and Wayne University.

Other members of this outstanding team were Bruce Carpenter who swam the breaststroke, Bronson Smith in the free-style, Arnold Brown in the free-style, and Bill Jones performing in the diving.

Under the coaching of Professor Wiley, last year's tennis team lost only to Kenyon and Oberlin and won twelve of their contests. The Buckeye Tournament ended in a three-way tie, Miami, Ohio University, and Wesleyan finishing on top. Previously, the Bishop racqueteers had defeated both of those teams. Thus, potentially they were the strongest team in the Buckeye.

Neil McPhail, "the grand old man of Wesleyan tennis," was lost due to graduation. McPhail could not be named as a consistent player, but his performances while under pressure were outstanding. He won the decisive match against the strong Miami team.

Gordon Fetter excelled at the net, was fairly consistent, and played his best game when the competition was most stiff.

A participant in many of the Black and Red's exciting tennis matches, Tracey Jones repeatedly scintillated in his play. Jones lost only three matches but later gained revenge for one by defeating his opponent from Miami in the Buckeye Tournament.

Known as "the human backboard," John Rowe earned the distinction of remaining entirely undefeated throughout the season, a record which Rowe is capable of repeating.

Indoor Track Cross Country

The indoor track season found few records cracked by the Bishops, but worthy of mention was the performance of Pat Brooks in heaving the shot 46'6" at Western State to far better the Wesleyan record.

At the Butler Relays, the Gauthiermen found the competition extremely strong. Bill Rath and Gibby Diehl reached the semi-finals in the sprints and low-hurdles respectively.

The indoor track meets proved their worth when the performances of Schmick, Mansfield, Smith, Fenton, Diehl, Ferris, and McDaniel improved considerably during the season.

Out of sixteen Bishops reporting for cross-country, only six leatherlungs finished the season with honors. Under the coaching of Dean Somerville, the squad trounced Muskingum and Ohio University, losing to Oberlin and Miami. Although the runners won only half of their meets, this was pronounced the best season in the last five years.

The average run was about four and a half miles, and the barrel-chested boys who finished the season were Stan Minor, John Smith, Nevin Scrimshaw, Bob Davison, Boyce McDaniel, and Don Tod.

Golf has remained in the background at Wesleyan, mainly because there is no course on which the Bishops may gain proper practice and familiarity. Home matches have to be played in Columbus.

The team won two matches from Kenyon and one from Miami, but failed to place in the State Intercollegiate matches at Dayton.

In playing order, R. Sharman, champion of the Kenwood Country Club of Cincinnati, was first man. Heepe, champion of the Akron City District, was second man. C. Jones, captain-elect was third man, and C. Metzler played fourth.

Although the coaches of opposing schools declared the fencing team to be the best that Wesleyan has produced in the last few years, most of the members were comparatively inexperienced.

Ed Peck was coach, and Art Lewis was faculty adviser. Peck and Davidson fought foil, Peck rating second only to the champion of the state. Ed Ismond and John Davies performed with the saber, while Glen Harman and Howard Steller twirled the epee. All were awarded their "W" sweaters.

Although the Freshman Football Squad numbered only twenty-nine, it contained some very likely material. Using plays of opposing Buckeye teams which were obtained by Wesleyan scouts, the team practiced two days a week and the third day scrimmaged against the varsity, using these plays. Practices never lasted longer than an hour and a half.

Outstanding linemen were: ends, Covert and Lanigan; tackles, Wickham, Rebol, and Bell; guards, McKeever, Jewitt, Robinson, and Hummon; centers, Akerstrom and Lord.

The backfield demonstrated wonderful ability and worked exceptionally well together. The ball-packing was in the hands of Wayne Domhoff, one of the best running backs to enter Wesleyan this year, and John Zimmerman, a hard-hitting and all-round fullback. The job of blocking brought to light two freshmen who showed more ability in removing opposing ends than did many varsity men. They were John Lesick and Don Grigsby. Grigsby was a fine field general, handling his men well and gaining the confidence of every player. Additional good backs were Moore, Fitts, and Markley.

From all appearances, Ohio Wesleyan is due for an even better basketball squad next winter. This year's freshman team may have been lacking in lanky cagers, but the players made up for this handicap with surprising speed, which the present type of basketball calls for.

Although the team did not play any regularly scheduled games, the members played against each other in preliminaries to varsity games. At the end of the season they contested one of the league winners of intramurals, Delta Tau Delta. The fraternity team was no match for the speedy and steady playing of the freshman squad, and the latter rolled up a terrific score.

Dick Hartman and John Buttermore proved to be two of the fastest forwards that Ohio Wesleyan has seen for some time. Both were all-state forwards in high school. Paul Kissner and Leonard LeSourd were forwards of no lesser ability.

At center was Charles Weigand, who excelled as a tip-off man and scorer, while Ed Baroody scored consistently on follow-in shots.

Guards Ralph Monroe and Don Grigsby, though not exceptional shots, helped considerably to steady the game with their excellent ball passing and handling.

WOMEN'S SPORTS

Women's Athletic Association

The Women's Athletic Association is the organization to which all Ohio Wesleyan sports-minded coeds belong. To be elected to membership, it is necessary to have earned one hundred points in three seasons of sports. Full participation in one sport is awarded by fifty points. This system is explained to all freshman women at the beginning of each year in the activities assembly.

W.A.A. sponsors all the sorority intramurals on the campus and is responsible for sending intramural teams to other schools to compete in contests and in "play days".

The association again this year was occupied in various projects to raise money for its cabin. Construction has not begun, but the site has been chosen and was the scene of occasional weiner roasts during the year. Operating confection stands at high school basketball games helped accumulate money to make the dream cabin a reality. The largest undertaking of the club was supervising arrangements for the annual Mardi Gras festival at which each sorority and fraternity was represented by a decorated booth.

The officers were Lois Hand, president; Sylvia Champney, vice-president; Frances Bailey, secretary; Jane Haddaway, treasurer; and Mary Lou Miller, social chairman. The officers and members cooperated in their activities with Miss Carolyn Tarbell, their faculty adviser.

Orchesis is an honorary dance organization for those who have shown interest and ability in modern creative dancing. Membership is achieved after months of vigorous training in Miss Wagner's dancing classes, a period of apprenticeship in Junior Orchesis, the passing of technique tests, and the presentation of two original dances. An active meeting is held each Tuesday evening when skills are practiced, dances created, and plans discussed for bringing world-famous dancers to the campus. Each spring the members present an interesting dance recital to the public.

The Swimmers' Club, composed of two divisions, is a very active campus organization. The members of the Senior group are those who have passed their life-saving tests, while any girl may belong to the Junior section if she can execute a simple dive and swim a required number of laps of the pool using several strokes. This year the club enjoyed splash parties, a water carnival, and meets with other schools. Under the leadership of President Ann McClelland and Swimming Instructor, Miss Patterson, the members assembled at the pool for action every Thursday evening.

Mr. E. F. Adler
Canton Engraving & Electrotype Co.
Canton, Ohio

Dear Mr. Adler,

Now that the work, as far as the 1958 Bijou is concerned, is practically over, Barb and I have had a little time to reflect some of our most gratifying experiences during the past year. We feel that we have been fortunate in being able to take part in producing the Wesleyan annual, and consider the intangible benefits derived from it as being invaluable to us.

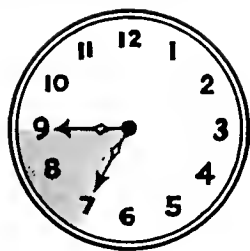

One of our more satisfying associations was our dealings with your company. I think that cooperation between two parties involved in business relations is an essential to the success of both concerns. Our connections with the Canton Engraving Company have been a source of pleasure to all those connected with the production of our yearbook. We sincerely appreciate the fine work that you have done for us this year.

I only hope that, in the future, my business relations will be as pleasant as those I have enjoyed with you and the associates of your company.

Very sincerely,
Frank M. Graner

THE CAMBRIDGE COLLIERIES
COMPANY

The University Book Store

was first established as a Student CO-OP store in 1905, failing, after a few years, from irresponsible management. In 1913, it was purchased by Fred E. Huntsberger, of the class of 1908. In 1920, Charles S. Huntsberger, of the class of 1913 joined his brother, and for 25 years these Wesleyan men have attempted to give complete service to Ohio Wesleyan students in the way of text books and college supplies. They merit your patronage.

The store handles everything in the way of papetries and all forms of paper goods, supplied largely by OHIO CONCERNS and made by AMERICAN WORKMEN. We stock thousands of small items needed on every desk, and in every home, with office supplies, typewriters, adding machines, art goods, small Athletic Goods, greeting cards, and countless other merchandise.

In dealing with our store, you are dealing with town merchants who have always co-operated with the college authorities, and who have rendered Alma Mater uncounted hundreds of services. We have advertised faithfully in the Bijou and the Transcript for a QUARTER OF A CENTURY. In the last financial campaign by the University, we contributed $500.00.

Is there any virtue in advertising in college publications?

IT'S STILL THE SAME OLD PLACE!

We wish to extend our appreciation to the spirit already shown us by the Wesleyan Students. Our aim is to continue in furnishing a courteous and friendly shop where students can stop for those "missed breakfasts," and can drop in between classes and at odd times to enjoy a bit of wholesome refreshment in the midst of real Wesleyan hospitality. Our fondest hope will be in trying to continue this good feeling that has existed between the students and Ralph.
